

Bangor Co-op shortage hits $300,000

By GIL MURRAY
Record News Editor

BANGOR — A 67-year-old woman who Wednesday was charged with embezzling more than $200,000 from a Bangor savings and loan association has pledged to re-pay the entire shortage.

Mrs. Mildred Jago, 318 Market St., Bangor, who is free on $15,000 bail on embezzlement charges, said:

"God willing, everything will be paid back. Everybody who knows me knows that I am not running away."

Mrs. Jago has been charged with taking the money from the Bangor Cooperative Savings and Loan Assn., 27 Broadway.

The association, which has assets in excess of one million dollars, was placed in receivership Wednesday by the State Dept. of Banking.

Starting today, the association will be operated by Francis E. Varilla, who has been appointed deputy receiver by G. Allen Patterson, secretary of banking.

Northampton County District Attorney Charles Spaziani said the exact shortage amounts to $301,000 and that Mrs. Jago has been embezzling the association's money since 1954.

Mrs. Jago refused to comment on why she took the money or what she did with it. According to Spaziani, Mrs. Jago has admitted she took the money.

The shortage was discovered after an audit was completed

Mrs. Mildred Jago's Bangor home by the banking department and the board of directors notified the district attorney of the shortage about 10 days ago.

Agency said

Mrs. Jago recently sold an insurance agency she operated for $105,000 and has assigned the money to the association.

Spaziani said that one of the schemes used by Mrs. Jago to divert funds was to sell a certain amount of saving certificates to an investor in the association and then enter a much lower amount on the company's records.

For instance, she would sell 100 certificates and only enter 10 certificates on the company's books. She diverted the differences in the two amounts to her own use.

Mrs. Jago also made fictitious loans for people and then converted the money to her use. She allegedly made out the proceeds of the loans in her own name, and then entered the loan on the association's books under the name of a person well-known in the Bangor area.

She was apparently able to keep the books straight by paying dividends on the number of shares a depositor thought he owned in the association and by making interest payments on the fictitious loans, while keeping the balance of the loan.

James Pritchard, association solicitor, said persons who have mortgages with the association should continue to make payments on their mortgages, but that persons who have installment loans should stop making payments.

Mrs. Jago, a well-known career woman in the State Belt area since 1923 and the wife of Dr. Herbert H. Jago, a Pen Argil dentist, was calm during a preliminary arraignment before Easton Alderman Pat Maragulia.

The criminal information against Mrs. Jago was sworn to by Varilla and a warrant was issued, but Mrs. Jago voluntarily appeared at the hearing, accompanied by her husband.

"I led home

She pledged her Bangor home as collateral for the $15,000 bail bond. She has from three to 10 days in which she can either enter a plea or waive a hearing and have the case go before a Northampton County Grand Jury.

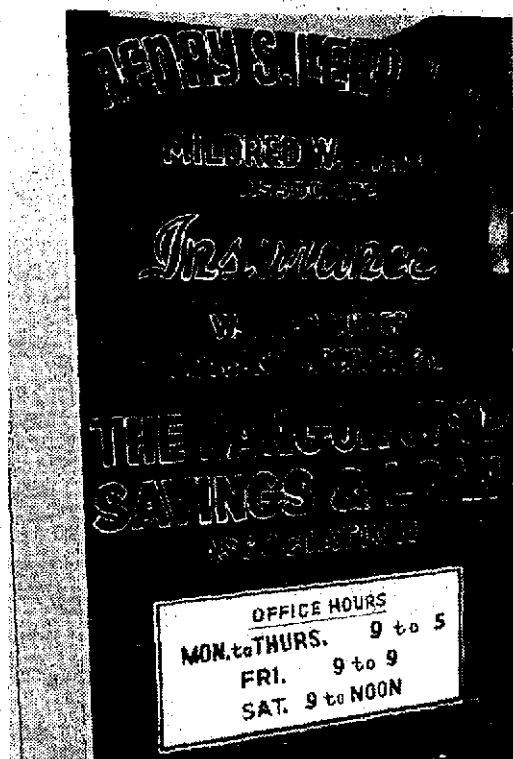

Maragulia said Mrs. Jago indicated she would consult with her lawyer before deciding what legal step to take next.

After the hearing, Mrs. Jago said, "Everything will be paid back, that's the important part."

Mrs. Jago has lived in her modest home on Market St. since 1936, and, according to friends has never had a reputation for spending large amounts of money.

What she did with the embezzled funds is a mystery, but Spaziani said Mrs. Jago claims she used some of the money to pay premiums on insurance policies of customers.

Pritchard said that Mrs. Jago resigned as secretary of the association several days

Entrance to Bangor Co-op Savings and Loan ago. She has been replaced by Donald Keat, who has been appointed acting secretary.

Pritchard said the association's offices have been moved out of Mrs. Jago's former insurance office and are now across the hall on the second floor of the Merchants National Bank Building.

The association's office will be open to enable persons to make mortgage payments.

Pritchard said that stock in the association had a value of $100.

Members of the Bangor business community were startled by the news that Mrs. Jago had admitted taking the $300,000. When asked for a comment, several persons actually stared in disbelief.

Wednesday morning, the board of directors met in Pritchard's office with Walter L. Brennan, director of the Bureau of Savings and Loans.

The directors requested the banking department to take possession of the institution at the close of business Wednesday.

In an official statement, the board said the shortage was in excess of the $100,000 fidelity bond which had been taken out on Mrs. Jago.

"This action was taken pursuant to the unanimous request of the board of directors in order to preserve and protect the assets of the association for the benefit of members and creditors."

"The Department of Banking is continuing its investigation into the situation and is in the process of conducting a complete audit of the affairs of the association to determine the amount of any shortage and the most desirable future course of action to follow."

Serving on the association's board of directors, in addition to Pritchard, are Willis R. Jordan, President, Bangor; Elwood Stoddard, Coopersburg, vice president; Glenwood Sandercock, treasurer; Dr. Charles C. Strout, assistant treasurer; and Keat, acting secretary, all of Bangor.

Nixon calls term last for Warren

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon announced Wednesday that Chief Justice Earl Warren has agreed to the president-elect's request to preside over the Supreme Court through the end of its current term next June.

Nixon said he will choose a successor to the retiring, 77-year-old chief justice to take office after the completion of the term.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's spokesman, relayed this to newsmen and said that by Warren's choice his retirement from the court will be effective at the pleasure of the president.

The president-elect and the chief justice—who have disagreed on court decisions regarding the rights of criminal suspects—talked for about 15 minutes.

Warren submitted his retirement to President Johnson some five months ago, effective when a successor was approved by the Senate.

But Johnson's choice of Justice Abe Fortas to succeed Warren touched off long and bitter Senate debate. Ultimately, the nomination was withdrawn at Fortas' request.

Nixon discussed taxes with Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Mills said they agreed that, hopefully, government economies might make possible some tax reduction next year.

Nixon worked, too, to shape his administration's negotiating team for the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. He relayed word that there has been discussion of assigning Henry Cabot Lodge, now U.S. ambassador to West Germany, to conduct the negotiations after the inauguration.

The president-elect appointed Dr. Paul W. McCracken, a University of Michigan professor, to be chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers.

And he disclosed through a spokesman that Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democrat he defeated for the White House, was offered and declined appointment as his ambassador to the United Nations.

The cautious talk of easing taxes dealt with the 10 per cent income surtax, which under current law would expire next June 30. Nixon and Mills both said that is a temporary levy which should be eased or ended as soon as possible.

"It's the hope that the surtax can expire on June 30," said Democrat Mills, the most powerful man on Capitol Hill in shaping tax policy. He said Nixon shared that hope.

1.35 inches fall

Rain blessing to deer

STROUDSBURG — Wednesday's 12:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. rainfall averaged 1.35 inches in the Poconos—it was a blessing to deer and a bane to hunters.

On the third day of buck season deer took cover in thick neighborhood groves of pines and hemlocks or bedded down in the relative safety of swampy lowlands. Very few hunters came home with a deer in Wednesday's wet, miserable weather.

There were no reports of area flooding. Creeks rose only a foot and the projected forecast for the next few days called for little or no precipitation.

Robert Fish, Delaware River master at Milford, said rainfall averaged about 1.25 inches and the river rose several feet but again there were no serious reports of flooding.

Fish noted that rainfall was heavier in coastal areas and less inland.

Monroe County Highway Department's weather forecast received from the Allentown-Bethlehem Airport weather bureau called for snow flurries ending early this morning with a low in the mid thirties.

Israeli bomber fleet flies deep into Jordan on mission

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli fighter-bombers raided 50 miles deep into Jordan Wednesday in a 90-minute attack the army said was aimed at installations of an Iraqi army division that had recently been shelling frontier settlements of Israel.

Radio Amman said six soldiers were killed and 14 wounded.

The squadrons stirred up anti-aircraft fire and an Israeli spokesman reported one plane, a Super-Mystere, was lost. The pilot parachuted into Jordan, he said, "but we managed to get him out."

Super-Mysteres are supersonic turbojets of French make.

Targets were in the Irbid sector, which is centered about 20 miles east of the Jordan River, and the city of Al Marfaq, the site of an air base, 30 miles farther east.

Radio Amman said air raid sirens wailed in Amman, Jordan's capital, 30 miles southwest of Al Marfaq, and King Hussein, as Jordan's supreme commander, took position at a command post.

The raid, launched in a heavy rain at noon, was the third such Israeli aerial incursion this week in a tit for tat exchange that is stirring major nations to consider further pressure for a settlement of the Middle East crisis.

France has proposed a meeting of the big powers to work on an international solution, Information Minister Joel Le Theule announced in Paris.

Le Theule told newsmen Foreign Minister Michel Debre had advised President Charles de Gaulle and his Cabinet that tensions are mounting in the Middle East and the big powers should "live up to their responsibilities, that is, take the initiative."

A correspondent of Tass, the official Soviet news agency, declared in a dispatch from Amman that Tel Aviv "will have to bear responsibility for all the innocent victims" of the air and artillery attacks on Jordanian villages.

That followed up a declaration by Pravda Tuesday that there would be "a resolute rebuff to the aggressors." The Soviet Communist party newspaper, however, again urged a peaceful settlement on the basis of the 13-month-old Security Council resolution.

An Israeli spokesman charged that big guns of the troops Iraq has based in north Jordan since the 1967 war had shelled at least 12 Israeli settlements south of the Sea of Galilee in the past three days. He said the regulars from that Arab nation, an eastern neighbor of Jordan, also have been working closely with Arab raiders.

A top-ranking army officer told a Tel Aviv news conference the Iraqis have been involved in past clashes with Israel, "but this is the first time they have opened up heavy artillery fire, with howitzers and other big guns," simultaneously.

"When they began shooting," he said, "everybody else, Jordanians included, chimed in."

He said Wednesday's raid was "strong, but not massive."

"The idea," he added, "was to tell the Iraqis that if they want to attack they cannot go unpunished."

Pope makes emotional plea for obedience from priests

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, in a voice breaking with emotion, spoke out Wednesday against dissenters in the Roman Catholic Church and demanded obedience to the Church's rules.

Though he did not mention names, it was evident that the pontiff was mainly singling out priests and bishops refusing to accept his demands that efforts to teach the Christian message in modern terms must reaffirm the traditional view on basic doctrines. He obviously had the controversial Dutch catechism in mind.

Addressing thousands at his weekly general audience in St. Peter's Basilica, the pontiff departed from his prepared text to interject: "Who speaks today of hell? This is not liked and not discussed... Everyone chooses the truths he likes."

Then he warned: "In this way faith disintegrates and with it that very same community that is called the one and only church."

Speaking of the Church's teachings, he said that "on this point the Catholic Church, you know, is severe, is demanding, is jealous, is dogmatic."

He added that accepted doctrines cannot be abandoned, and that on this point the Church would not yield at any cost.

The speech was taken in Vatican circles as another of the Pope's increasingly anguished reproofs of those who have confronted him with a crisis of authority by refusing to accept his pronouncements on such issues as birth control, priestly celibacy and obedience.

But the main target has been the Dutch catechism and the thinking it represents.

Five days ago a commission of six cardinals backed by the Pope issued a formal Vatican declaration demanding that the highly progressive Dutch hierarchy revise the catechism to stress traditional Church views on angels, the virginity of Mary, and the presence of Christ as flesh and blood in the consecrated bread and wine of the Eucharist.

It was disclosed in that declaration that the Pope had asked for these changes as far back as last year but was ignored.

The Dutch catechism, published in the Netherlands two years ago, has become a runaway best seller in that country and in progressive Catholic circles elsewhere.

Written mainly by a Dominican priest, Father Edward Schillebeeckx, it questions the literal interpretation of many bedrock doctrines, suggesting instead that they are symbolic rather than factual.

In the Vatican declaration, the Dutch were told they must make the catechism say beyond doubt that angels, for example, really do exist, that Mary was always a virgin, that the bread and wine of the Eucharist are not symbols of Christ but His actual flesh and blood, and that the power of the Church is its teaching is absolute.

Striking students driven off campus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police drove about 1,000 strike demonstrators off the San Francisco State College campus Wednesday in a peaceful show of force.

There was no renewal of Tuesday's wild melee in which strikers stoned police and were beaten back with nightsticks.

Marching eight abreast around the college quadrangle, the demonstrators had been chanting "Shut it down, shut it down. Pigs off campus!"

Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, new acting president of the college which has been in turmoil since Nov. 6, warned them over a public address system to disperse or police would be called.

About 500 policemen, who had been held in readiness off the campus during the week's quietest morning, then marched in.

As the police advanced, the demonstrators retreated.

Police Lt. James Currin with a bullhorn ordered the crowd to disperse, and the demonstrators moved off college property and across the street.

Through the morning classes and atmosphere at the 18,000-student college had been normal.

Best estimates of the active strike leaders have ranged from 200 to 300.

The Black Students Union which provoked a month of unrest and violence by calling for a classroom strike, is supported by the Students for a Democratic Society and the non-Caucasian Third World Liberation Front.

Post appeals Lil's judgment

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lawyers for the Saturday Evening Post have filed for a new trial in the $1.8 million libel suit won last June by Lillian Reis, former nightclub owner and entertainer.

The lawyers, Harold E. Kohn and David H. Marion, charged Tuesday Miss Reis' verdict was based on perjured testimony.

Miss Reis and two daughters were awarded $1.8 million at the trial last June before Judge Joseph E. Gold and a jury of seven men and five women.

Physician risks cancer in test

LIMA, Peru (AP) — In a bold experiment, a young Peruvian physician injected himself with cancer cells, taken from his half-sister, and later gave her the cancer-fighting antibodies that his body had created.

Dr. Alfonso Zavaleta Cruzado, 34, says he may have cured his sister, Mrs. Elis Wenzell, of cancer of the uterus. The cancer apparently has disappeared, he said.

But he stressed that less than a month has passed since the experiment, and five years are required to think in terms of cure.

Similar experiments to mobilize antibodies against cancers are being carried out in the United States and elsewhere — some with encouraging results. Dr. Zavaleta's experiment differs in some respects.

He injected cancer cells into his leg. His system formed antibodies to destroy the foreign cells, much as antibodies are formed to resist bacteria, or to reject transplanted organs.

He then bled himself to obtain lymphocytes, white blood cells carrying the antibodies, and transferred them to his sister.

Harrisburg suspends top cop

HARRISBURG (AP) — City Police Chief C. Preston Price was suspended indefinitely without pay Wednesday in the wake of an audit showing thousands of dollars of traffic tickets "unaccounted for."

Mayor Albert Straub said he ordered the suspension after receiving information from Dauphin County Dist. Atty. LeRoy Zimmerman.

During the suspension, Straub said, Capt. George Brink will continue as acting chief, a job he has filled since Price was hospitalized for minor surgery in October.

The audit, issued by Main LaFrentz & Co. in September charged that in 1967 — before Straub was mayor — approximately 20,000 traffic tickets were "unaccounted for."

Also, the audit reported, a test authorized by Straub during March showed 821 "unaccounted for" tickets this March including 12 tickets with accompanying $5 fines in cash.

The 12 cash fines were mailed by the auditors themselves but no records of them could be found in the traffic bureau files.

Woman, 20, defies Sicilian code—weds

ALCAMO, Italy (AP) — Defying an ancient Sicilian code that doomed her to spinsterhood, 20-year-old Franca Viola stood at the altar of a small church here Wednesday and married the man of her choice.

The marriage, in the face of threats against her life, made her a living symbol of a new era for Sicilian womanhood. The nation praised her; its president honored her.

Two years ago Franca was abducted from her home by a rich man's son she had spurned. He raped her while holding her prisoner for several days. Since the Middle Ages Sicilian women have been dishonored by seduction unless they marry their seducer.

But Franca refused to marry the man and all Sicily predicted a life of disgrace and spinsterhood for her.

She stunned this island and won the applause of the rest of Italy when she stood in court and told her abductor, Filippo Melodia: "I do not love you. I will not marry you."

He is serving an 11-year prison term. If she agreed to marry him, the charges would have been dropped.

Franca's wedding to an old school friend was moved up secretly from 10 a.m. to dawn to avoid the crowd that would have overflowed the little church of Santagosto.

She received thousands of letters of praise for her courage.

The state-run radio called her defiance of the past and her

Barber, 56, found dead of beating

HARRISBURG (AP) — Police summoned to the 600 block of Schuykill Street early Wednesday found John B. Ardelean, 56, lying on the sidewalk fatally beaten.

Authorities said Ardelean, operator of a barber shop in midtown Harrisburg, apparently had been in a fight. The incident occurred almost in front of Ardelean's home.

An associate of Zavaleta, Dr. Oscar Miro Quesada, told The Associated Press: "It is too early to know the results of Dr. Zavaleta's technique. But this is a beginning. Now we have to wait five years to see if the cancer returns."

Miro Quesada is president of the Peruvian Society for Immunopathology, and director of the National Institutes of Health, while Zavaleta now is a medical officer, a first lieutenant, in the Peruvian navy.

"I have always felt a cure for cancer would come from a crossfire between chemistry and immunology," Miro Quesada said.

"Dr. Zavaleta and I have been conducting chemical trials with hopeless cases—people with one foot in the tomb and the other on a banana peel. We have been able to keep them alive for one to 1½ years, until their cancer cells became resistant to the chemicals."

"Now, Zavaleta has come up with this simple technique."

Some 12 years ago, experiments with volunteers at the Ohio Penitentiary, conducted by Sloan-Kettering Institute scientists, showed that the men developed antibodies and soon destroyed cancer cells injected into them. Zavaleta said he had worked, more recently, with Dr. Chester Stock at the institute in New York City.

In Buffalo, N.Y., at the Roswell Park Memorial Institute, research on producing antibodies is being carried out between pairs of cancer patients.

Cells from one patient's tumor are transplanted into the second patient, and vice versa. A few weeks later, blood is withdrawn and spun to extract the white cells with their antibodies, while red cells and serum are given back to the patient.

The white cells from the first patient are given to the second patient to act against his tumor, and similarly with the second patient. The treatment is repeated eight to 10 times; at three to four-day intervals, said Dr. James T. Grace of Roswell.

While figures on results "are still in the ballpark range" before closer analysis, roughly 15 per cent of patients have shown some measurable, objective signs of regression of their tumors, and in three to four per cent "we have seen complete disappearance, in one case for 20 months," Grace said.

"There is enough to warrant additional study."

The paired patients had mainly tumors of the bone and melanomas or black cancer.

Pittsburgh teachers hint strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Teachers Education Association demanded arbitration of their $6 million salary proposal Wednesday and hinted at the possibility of a strike.

"If the Board of Education refuses to arbitrate, it doesn't leave us much alternative," said John V. Varosack, executive director of the group.

Varosack, at a news conference, charged the board with "brinkmanship by arbitrarily refusing to grant any salary increase for 1969-70."

The PTEA has asked the board for a salary package which a school spokesman said would cost $6 million. Salaries would range from $7,500 to $11,972 for a teacher with a bachelor's degree compared to a present range of $6,500 to $9,800.

The PTEA claims a membership of 1,400. But the Federation of Teachers won a poll of teachers in August 1,750 to 1,600.

The PFT said Tuesday it will decide within a month whether to strike the Board of Education again. The union is asking for a similar salary package as the association.

A spokesman for the board said he believes the board "would hesitate to approve arbitration proceedings because of the high settlements the city police and firemen got."

Six top military officials tour Tobyhanna Village

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

TOBYHANNA—Six top ranking military officials from Washington, D.C. conducted a personal inspection tour Wednesday of deficiencies in the Tobyhanna Village Wherry Housing Project.

The officials toured the 200 apartment, federal housing development at the request of Congressman Fred B. Rooney (D-Pa.) and the Federal Housing Administration (FHA). Rooney, at the request of the Tobyhanna Village Self-Improvement Assn., urged the FHA to investigate deficiencies in the housing project which were outlined in a four-page report by the 62-member Self-Improvement Association.

Inaction cited
The inspection tour Wednesday came on the heels of continued reports that no deficiencies at the housing project had been corrected by the owner, Dr. Gabriel Elias of Philadelphia.

It was apparent during the inspection tour, however, that some improvements have been made in the past few weeks. P.N. Brownstein, assistant secretary-commissioner of the FHA, told Rooney in a recent letter that "the owner has submitted paid invoices indicating sizeable expenditures for boiler systems repairs made during the past 30 days."

Apparently, Dr. Elias has agreed in writing to make certain repairs by the end of the year and others by September, 1969.

Not pleased
The military officials during their inspection tour, however, did not seem at all pleased over the conditions.

The team inspected all three boiler rooms in the complex. The boilers about two years ago had been converted from coal to oil.

James E. Walsh, family housing manager at Tobyhanna Army Depot, agreed Wednesday that repairs had been made to a boiler.

Aside from the boiler repairs, however, the inspection team complained about apparent high fuel odors and the condition of wiring and boxes in the basement power circuits.

Deatrice Monroe, president of the Self-Improvement Association, accompanied the six officials on the tour as did Wilmer Vogt, manager of the project for Dr. Elias. Tobyhanna Army Depot Fire Chief Carmine Bruno, also toured the complex.

Aside from the boiler rooms, following is a list of some of the deficiencies observed by the team:

Deficiencies seen
Broken pavement, continual water leak and exposed electrical wiring in the laundry room; loose wiring behind one building; broken pavement throughout the development; broken window sills; no lighting in hallways and basements; broken windows; some unpainted hallways and no facilities for laundering.

Midway during the more than two hour tour of the development, one of the inspection team members said, "Thank God for small things I don't have to live in a place like this."

Some members of the team expressed concern that the only exit from the apartments is through the front door. Each unit contains four apartments and access is through the front door.

The inspectors checked possible escape routes through

Yule trimmings made in church

GREENTOWN — An Advent Workshop and Family Dinner were held at the Hemlock Grove United Methodist Church, with candlemaking, the fashioning of tree ornaments and decorations for the tables. Advent wreaths, a creche, and other holiday items made by each of the family members attending.

There was a special drama and music. Mrs. Thurston Shumway was a guest of the families at the dinner.

windows in case of fire, but found that the window openings are too small.

Basement flooded
Access to one of the apartments' basement was barred due to three inches of water on the floor. Vogt said the catch basin is blocked.

"Yeah, we got a blocked drain in the street somewhere," Vogt said. Walsh said the drain was also clogged last year.

Two of the basements which were checked were dark. Vogt told the inspectors the light bulbs had apparently been taken or a fuse is blown out.

In one of the basements, two nails protruded from a wood partitioning. The inspectors immediately flattened the nails to prevent injury.

The inspectors noted that one basement was in orderly fashion and an official commented, "Looks like somebody's been doing some housekeeping."

One official, asked to comment on the conditions of the development, said, "I guess the place speaks for itself."

Gypsum walls
The walls throughout the apartments are one-half inch gypsum. One of the military officials had measured the thickness through a large crack in the wall.

There are two maintenance men for the housing project besides Vogt.

"If the two maintenance men were top-notch they'd have their hands full," one official said.

"It sure is hard for people to have pride if they live in a place like this," another official said.

Vogt told the inspection team that there are no thermostats in the rooms nor can the heat be regulated in the apartments.

"They control the heat by opening and closing doors and windows," an inspector told his colleague.

The team inspected a cross-section of the development which included apartments, basements, boiler rooms, walks and the rear of buildings in addition to playgrounds.

Following the tour, the officials met in conference to review the issue.

FHA report
Richard Walters, an officer for the Assistant Secretary of the Army, said a complete report will be made of the tour and submitted to Col. Paul H. Poulin, Col. Poulin, in turn, Walters said, will submit a report to the FHA.

The officials, in addition to Walters, who conducted the inspection tour are:

Robert Disney, deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, Family Housing Division; Steven Davidson, officer Chief of Engineers, Fire Prevention Engineer; Abraham Gardner, Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel; Joseph D. Hartsoe and Lt. B.J. Bull, both of the Army's Family Housing Division headquarters.

Air pollution commission meets today

PORTLAND — The Pennsylvania Air Pollution Commission will meet today in the Metropolitan Edison Company power generating station in Portland.

The commission will discuss regulation of sulphur dioxide during its public meeting. Procedural regulations for the approval of local air pollution control agencies and control of the "air basin" will also be discussed.

Commission members will tour a prototype sulfur dioxide removal system developed by Monsanto Co. which is installed at the Portland generating station. The system abates pollution by converting sulfur dioxide gas into sulfuric acid.

Hunter finds live artillery shells

TOBYHANNA — A hunter in the state game preserve near Tobyhanna Army Depot Monday found a rusted 155 millimeter shell, fired more than 30 years ago.

When Ronald Conover of Gouldsboro, a depot employee, came upon the two-foot missile, he reported its location to the depot's provost marshal, who summoned a disposal team from the 69th Ordnance Detachment, Valley Forge Army Hospital, Phoenixville.

While the squad, headed by Capt. William Kietzman, was dismantling the shell, it discovered three more close by.

It was two years ago during the deer-hunting season that two other men discovered a similar-type dud.

Capt. Kietzman warned, "Although the shells are rust-covered, most of them are alive and extremely dangerous. They could shatter a building and kill everyone within a radius of 50 feet if exploded accidentally."

He estimated there were "hundreds more in these woods."

Band Boosters bake sale at concert

SWIFTWATER — The Band Boosters Assn. of the Pocono Mountain High School is planning to hold its annual bake sale in conjunction with the school Christmas concert to be held Wednesday night, Dec. 18.

Plans for the sale were discussed at the November meeting of the Band Boosters. Anyone wishing to donate bake goods for the sale is asked to bring or send it to the school on Dec. 18.

There will be no December meeting of the Band Boosters.

The Tobyhanna Military Reservation was first used for artillery practice firing during the summer of 1913 by Regular Army troops from Ft. Myer, Va.

In the late 1930s, West Point cadets also practiced artillery firing on the reservation, which at that time comprised about 50,000 acres.

Charter night set for new Jaycees

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Western Pocono Jaycees will be officially chartered by the State Jaycee President, John Allison on Saturday 7 p.m. in the Chestnut Hill Inn, Mollhane.

John Nye, Pleasant Valley High School Principal and former Jaycee President of Kennett Square Jaycees will be master of ceremonies at the Charter Night Banquet.

County Commissioner Arlington (Bud) Martin will give the welcoming address. Allison will present the Charter and install officers.

The Charter Night Committee includes John Neff, coordinating chairman with Lee Everett, Matthew Held and Larry Krome.

The new group is the result of efforts of the Pocono Mountain Jaycees to start a Jaycee organization in the West End of Monroe County. Currently there are 28 members between the ages of 21 and 35. The group first met on Oct. 10 and already have laid plans to sponsor a Christmas Lighting Contest for the homes in the area with Larry Anewalt as chairman.

A fund raising committee has been organized by president John Neff with Ronald Mackes as chairman to provide for financial support for future community service projects. Also, plans are being started for a comprehensive community-wide Attitude Survey.

Membership in the Western Pocono Jaycees is open to all young men in the community. The next regular full membership meeting is Friday at 8 p.m. in the Gilbert Inn.

In 1790 only one out of 20 Americans lived in an urban area. Today 14 out of 20 live in urban centers.

Double force in foreign affairs

Has President-elect Richard M. Nixon tipped his hand?

Will the new administration increase, rather than decrease, its involvement in foreign affairs?

These questions came to mind suddenly Monday when Nixon appointed Henry A. Kissinger as an assistant for national security affairs.

However, Kissinger's title is misleading. The foreign policy scholar has been appointed to a position that will utilize his ability to the fullest.

But, it apparently will act in conflict with the Secretary of State, yet to be named, who is normally the foreign relations expert in any presidential cabinet.

Nixon has explained that he hopes to do away with any conflict between the two positions and is hopeful that he can use the ability of both to combat and assist in quieting the troubled world.

The new president actually will have a Secretary of State in the Capital and a Secretary of State in the White House. It will enable him to check fact against fact.

However, it will also bring about a new problem for the incoming administration. Duties will overlap and unless in complete agreement, the two similar office holders could bring about discontent in the cabinet.

Kissinger has constructed a reputation of following a hard line when it comes to dealing with Communism. A Secretary of State with less stringent views could pose a problem for the entire administration.

But, it is fairly safe to assume at this time that the United States is to continue its position of a world power and do all in its power to halt the spread of Communism and further the cause of peace.

Assistance from taxes

East Stroudsburg was the first locality to find relief in the one per cent earned income tax adopted earlier this year.

True, residents of the borough are paying the one per cent tax, a form of taxation with which they didn't have to live last year.

However, this form of taxation certainly curtailed any further talk of tax increases, even though the borough's budget for 1969 is $46,000 above that of 1968.

The one per cent earned income tax was originally adopted to aid the East Stroudsburg school system, which admittedly was in grave need of financial assistance.

It was agreed at the time that the borough would allow the school district to take 80 per cent of the income derived from the one per cent tax during 1968. It was further agreed by both parties that the tax would be split 50-50 in future years.

This forward look has now made it possible to grant a sizable budget increase without bringing about a similar increase in tax payments.

Delaware Water Gap, a member of the Stroudsburg School District, was the second municipality to receive a favorable break from the one per cent earned income tax.

Water Gap Council has adopted a $49,496 budget for 1969 and at the same time made it known that it will not increase taxes.

Delaware Water Gap, like East Stroudsburg, operated on an 80-20 ratio with the school district for 1968 and the future calls for a 50-50 division.

This new form of taxation is paying dividends at an early date. Thus far it has helped everyone concerned.

The Scott Report

Fate up in air

WASHINGTON — The fate of the longtroubled F-111 warplane — originally the TFX — will almost certainly become one of the first big defense battles of the 91st Congress.

The stage for this multi-billion dollar showdown is being quietly prepared by Sen. John McClellan (D. Ark.), Chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee.

After five years of intensive investigation, the veteran senate prober has ordered his subcommittee staff to prepare for final hearings in January on whether the controversial project should be junked.

Already, McClellan has indicated privately that he has grave doubts that a single plane will eventually be salvaged although more than four billion dollars has been poured into the ill-conceived "wonder plane" project.

"The Defense Department will be lucky if it gets one airplane that flies properly out of the F-111 program," McClellan reported to subcommittee staff members in discussing plans for his new hearing. "There is no doubt in my mind that this was (former Defense Secretary) McNamara's biggest blunder."

Designed as an all-purpose plane with built-in commonality to make it suitable for the Navy as well as Air Force and Army, the F-111's technical problems have raised its original estimate cost for each plane from $3.4 million to $9.85 million.

These problems, centering around structural difficulties of the swing-winged plane, caused the Navy's version to be cancelled outright, and recently forced the Air Force to cut back orders in the strategic-bomber version.

The fighter-bomber model (the F-111), restricted from combat after three of the planes crashed in Thailand, have either been grounded or are now being tested under severe "flight restrictions."

End of plane?

In private talks with McClellan, Defense Secretary Clark Clifford has acknowledged that the plane's future is far from being bright.

Although he strongly defended the fighter-bomber version of the F-111, Clifford admitted that his experts are now debating how much of the over-all, three-in-one plane program should be cancelled.

Under study by both Clifford and McClellan's subcommittee is a recent critical assessment of the fighter-bomber model made by Sen. Stuart Symington (D. Mo.). Prepared for the Senate Armed Service Committee, it states:

"The F-111A has range, it has payload roughly the same as the F-105, F-4, A-6, and A-7; but cannot carry on combat missions those bombs we were led to believe it could. It does have blind bombing capability more accurate than the F-4 or F-105."

"But the F-111A is too large and too expensive to be used for daylight dive bombing, too sluggish and too unmaneuverable to risk in air-to-air combat, and too expensive to commit to the kind of action where a man with a rifle might knock it down. Nor can the F-111A do the fighter role it was supposed to be capable of. No one even claims that any more."

Symington was also highly critical of the strategic bomber model of the F-111, reporting:

"Let us look at the F-111B for SAC (Strategic Air Command). It is going to replace the early B-52s and the B-58s, but it does not have the payload capability of either — actually has shorter range than the planes it would be replacing."

Many have crashed

According to the subcommittee's investigative reports, 105 of these swing-wing planes have been built by General Dynamics Corp. since the project was started in 1961 during the Kennedy Administration.

Of those planes, the investigators say, eleven have crashed, including three being tested overseas. Of the remaining planes, 89 are Air Force fighter-bombers, one is an Air Force strategic bomber, and four remain of the cancelled Navy test version.

Because of cancellations, the General Dynamics Corp. is now left with orders for only 337 of these controversial planes. Originally, the company had planned to build 1,700 planes at a total cost of $4,800,000,000. By mid-1968, the program's cost has soared to $20,800,000,000 for only 1,300 planes.

Committee investigators say the trouble with the plane is in the basic box-like steel structure running through the central of the aircraft. It has pivots at both ends, to which the movable "swing wings" are attached, but it reportedly cracks, after the wings have been opened and closed at high speeds often enough.

Blow to art

WASHINGTON — It was either Arnold Toynbee or Orphan Annie who said, "The more things change, the more they remain the same." (When the writing fever is on me I can't be slowed to look things up.)

And so it is today with our President-elect, not even yet installed in the White House and already being criticized for his tastes in art. According to one published report, Richard Nixon dislikes modern, or impressionistic art, and favors paintings which actually look like something.

That alone is enough to make the culture hounds here arch their eyebrows in surprise and purse their lips in disapproval. But, worse, to their way of thinking, is that he seems to prefer pictures of American scenes painted by American artists. How terribly provincial he is, my dears!

Why, the artsy set has not had such a blow since President Johnson said he preferred the work of Norman Rockwell. Rockwell has long been in disfavor among the "intelligentsia" for three reasons: He's an American artist, he paints American scenes and what he paints can be immediately recognized for what it is.

Blask days

An indication that bleak days were ahead for the post crowd came when Nixon toured an American Embassy in Europe and, after viewing its much heralded collection of impressionistic paintings by foreign artists, said to the Ambassador's wife, "Honey, where did you get that junk?"

Then came the word that Nixon had requested, for his temporary offices here, paintings showing American scenes by American artists. It would seem that Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon agree on more things than Vietnam. In addition to continuity in government we shall also have continuity in White House art.

This cannot be all bad. Lyndon Johnson's comment regarding Norman Rockwell was one of the few things for which I applauded him. It indicated to me, at least, that he was a down-to-earth man, who, despite the risk of seeming pedestrian, said what he thought.

Now, the same may be said of Nixon. Let's face it, it would be difficult to trust a man who pretended to admire modern art just because others do. Even those who profess admiration for it really don't understand it. The incidents of nationally-known galleries mistakenly hanging impressionistic paintings upside-down and of apes winning modern painting contests are legion.

I say Nixon's taste in art is a good omen that we'll have a level-headed man running the country.

There's only one thing that'll save the franc; De Gaulle has got to figure out some way to get the American tourists back.

Sen. Edmund Muskie says lack of money hurts his 1972 chances. Maybe he could borrow some from Teddy. Ho, ho.

The Pennsylvania Story

Votes made equal

HARRISBURG — When the United States Supreme Court promulgated its "one-man, one-vote" opinion, little did the jurists realize that they were signing a "Declaration of Independence" for Pennsylvania legislators!

The ruling said that all legislators should be elected from districts that were as nearly equal in size as possible, thus making each man's vote equal to every other man's.

When it came to re-apportioning the Pennsylvania Legislature, a secondary consideration was added: that all members must be elected from single member districts. Prior to this, some Pennsylvania legislators were elected from multiple member districts, in which two, three, four or even five representatives were sent to the House.

suffice it to say that this meant that a county chairman might be able to control that many votes and that large numbers of "faceless men" were sent to the Legislature.

Under new rules

The 1967-1968 Pennsylvania Legislature is the first one elected under the new rules and there seems little doubt that it is the best in Pennsylvania history.

John C. Pittenger, Lancaster, a professor of government and politics at Franklin and Marshall College, was a member of the last Legislature elected under the old rules. He lost his seat last year, but regained it Nov. 3 for the coming 1969 session.

"There is no doubt about the fact that the single member districts make the legislator his own man," Pittenger said. "Formerly he might be beholden to a county chairman because he might have had to run as part of a slate, but now he is independent."

"This system has brought a whole new feeling of independence to the individual legislator. It was this feeling that was largely responsible for the overwhelming approval of Herb Fineman as the Democratic designee as Speaker of the House of Representatives."

Fineman was unanimously endorsed by the Democratic caucus for the position last week, and although from Philadelphia, he was opposed by the Democratic boss of the Keystone State's biggest city, Mayor James H. J. Tate.

Without a power base in his own city, Fineman was actually the candidate of the "up-state" or rural group of legislators, who proved for the first time that they could effectively use their muscle when they decided to band together.

Their new spirit of independence was perhaps best expressed by Rep. John L. Brunner, a cocky little attorney from Burgettstown, Washington County, who told his county chairman bluntly over the phone: "Don't you make any deals that I'm going to keep. And I'm for Fineman."

Rep. Franklin L. Kury, Sunbury, who won his second term in a district that is heavily Republican, was just as blunt: "I don't care who Tate is for. In fact, I'm against all big city bosses. And when they were against Fineman, then I became even more firmly convinced that he was the best man."

Representatives W. Brady Hetrick, Lewistown; James J. Manderino, Monessen; Kent L. Shelhamer, Berwick RD 2; Robert C. Wise, Williamsport, and Fred Taylor, Uniontown, were others who helped lead the Fineman-for-Speaker movement against would-be Philadelphia bossman Tate.

"There's a new spirit of independence around the legislature these days," Taylor opined. "We aren't about to take any guff from anyone."

The combination of the up-state forces was joined by the Allegheny County delegation the Saturday before last week's caucus action, thus isolating politico Tate, who capitulated, leaving many to wonder why he ever started the fight in the first place. (Perhaps he was unused to the idea that you can't just boss around the boys from the small towns — as is his custom in the Quaker City.)

The victory for the up-staters could well lead to an entire re-structuring of the Democratic Party — if the legislators from that party are able to hold their power — and Mayor Tate's fight could be Pennsylvania's own "Last Hurrah" for the big city bosses.

One thing we do know for sure: the one-man, one-vote ruling has lent stature to the Pennsylvania legislators, now becoming each "his own man!"

Remember Pearl Harbor

Editor, The Record:

Let us remember Pearl Harbor on this, its 27th anniversary, (Friday).

When our country was attacked, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, proceeding properly under the Constitution, asked Congress to declare a state of war with Japan. The Constitution specifically provides that such responsibility rests with Congress alone.

We are now in a de facto war with North Vietnam involving over half a million men. It is far from over. No president has the legal right to prosecute such a war without authorization from Congress. It was never intended, in our Republic, that one man should have such power of life and death over his fellow-men.

Let us start our crusade for law and order at the top level and uphold the supreme law of the land, which is the United States Constitution. Let us insist that the Senate rescind the illegal, open-ended Tonkin Gulf Resolution, and let us insist that the Congress stand up and be counted as to whether a state of war exists with North Vietnam.

And, more important, since we have 43 Messianic treaties pledging our youth and treasure to defend 43 other nations from "aggression", let us make doubly sure in the future that Congress, representing all the citizens, assume its Constitutional responsibility for war involvement.

A clear strong voice from our glorious past, perhaps faintly now, still resounds: "...government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Let us see that it doesn't.

Sex education

Editor, The Record

When "accident" occurs, can book burning be far behind?

Due to a concerted effort to inject the siesus brand of sex education into New Jersey schools, this incident is of vital concern to all residents of New Jersey.

On November 8, in the public parking lot of the Parsippany High School, school officials halted the sale of documented copies of Dr. Gordon Drake's anti-pornographic lecture which exposes raw sex in the schoolhouse.

After giving his lecture in the auditorium, school officials charged that Dr. Drake could not sell the books at cost for 50 cents each because he did not have a peddler's license.

In his documented book, Dr. Gordon Drake describes the new sexuality as consisting of open mixed group teaching and personal experience discussions by students throughout K-12.

Although some parents may not object to such subjects being taught and experienced by their five, six and seven year old children, I think all parents should at least become aware of this new sexuality which has been given to the old subject of — sex education — as they knew it. For this reason, I am making free copies of Dr. Drake's book available to the public at my own personal expense.

While it is not without some merits, one undesirable side effect of teaching new sexuality to school children is the resulting 48 per cent illegitimate birth rate.

In addition to destroying the concept of family living, illegitimacy of such proportions would result in staggering tax increases due to massive welfare enrollments.

Anyone may obtain a free copy of Dr. Drake's anti-pornographic banned book about raw sex in the schoolhouse by sending a written request to Pause, Inc. — Parents Against Unconstitutional Sex Education — Box 149, Parsippany, N.J. 07054.

Effort postal service

17 postmasters in 118 years

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of 10 articles on post office histories in the West End of Monroe County, compiled by Raymond Andrews, a retired school teacher, who lives in Kresgeville.)

EFFORT — The United States Post Office was established in Effort on January 9, 1850 and in the following 118 years there have been 17 postmasters.

Patrick Daily was the first postmaster and served until December 11, 1858, when John J. Barthold was sworn into office.

Charles T. Tidd became the third postmaster on Nov. 13, 1862, followed by Joseph Arnold on Sept. 11, 1866.

Tidd returned to another term of office on Nov. 17, 1870, and served to April 12, 1877, when Jeremiah Kresge was named to the position.

Jackson D. Searfass followed Kresge in office on March 13, 1883, and Charles S. Woehle followed in office on April 10, 1883. Aaron Loux was selected as postmaster on Jan. 30, 1891.

Jackson D. Searfass was named to head the post office on August 21, 1893; Curtin Tidd, Sept. 17, 1897; William H. Dinstel, August 14, 1914; Fred R. Rinker, Nov. 10, 1933; Kenneth L. Rinker, Feb. 7, 1939; Mrs. Etta E. Rinker, April 23, 1943; Esther M. Smith, June 30, 1960, and Gerald D. Murphy, 1961.

Murphy is still serving in the office. Dinstel held the post for the most number of years, 19, while Mrs. Rinker headed the Effort post office for 17 years.

Stories Behind Words By William Penfield

To Beard the Lion

Man recognized long ago that a person with no courage could afford to act brave when there is no danger present.

They also recognized that the hare was a timid animal and that the lion was a fierce one. The hare's name became synonymous with timidity, and the lion was regarded as the king of beasts.

The Romans had a proverb to the effect that a hare could afford to leap on, or insult, a dead lion. An English proverb held that "Hares may pull dead lions by the beard."

From the latter proverb came the expression "to beard the lion," which means to be rashly brave. Spelled out, it means to be so rash as to pull the beard of a live lion.

Ann Landers

Find new friends

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is friendly with a couple of men he works with. Their wives are not the type I would pick for friends on my own. Every Friday evening we have a set date. The six of us go out to dinner and we end up at a little cocktail lounge that has music.

The men drink beer and talk business the whole time. The wives of these two men dance with each other. I sit because I don't like to dance with a woman. I think it looks peculiar. Furthermore, men they never saw before, cut in on them on the dance floor and they end up dancing with strangers. They say it's O.K. because their husbands are present. What do you say?

SQUARE PEG

Dear Peg: I say the whole thing smells like a lost barrel of herring. Haven't you people got homes? Why sit in taverns? You need some new friends and I hope you find them soon and break up this gleesome threesome.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is 18. She graduated from high school in June and is taking a secretarial course. Thelma has been dating a divinity student. He is 20 and shares an apartment with two other divinity students. We all like Jerome because he seems more settled than most of the young men Thelma has dated.

Last night I understood

Thelma to say she and Jerome were going to a party. I woke up at 4 a.m. with an uneasy feeling. I always feel better when I know Thelma is home, so I checked her bed. It had not been slept in. I was worried sick but decided not to awaken my husband.

At 6:25 a.m. Thelma came tiptoeing into the house, carrying her shoes. I gave her a long, hard look but said nothing. My husband did not wake up and he doesn't know about this.

My question is: Do parents have a right to tell an 18-year-old girl when to be in? She does not pay room and board. We are putting her through secretarial school. She has had no curfew since high school graduation. I am opposed to a girl coming in from a date at that hour of the night. Am I wrong?

Dear L.L.L.: That "hour of the night" is not night, Lady. It's morning.

No 18-year-old girl should be allowed to stay out until dawn. Your silence was condonation.

Have a talk with Thelma. Tell her she cannot come and go as if she lived in a hotel. Midnight is plenty late for a secretarial school student (to say nothing of a divinity student). And 2 a.m. is a reasonable, respectable hour for weekends.

Dear Ann Landers: They say when a woman's husband dies, her whole world changes. I became a widow two weeks ago and I can attest to the truth of this statement. I did not expect to get it in writing, however. Three of my friends spelled it out in their "sympathy" letters. The most revealing note closed as follows: "It was an honor and a pleasure to have known you both." In other words, "This is it, Toots. Get lost."

As extra woman is a fifth wheel — a problem to hostesses everywhere. I know, too, some women consider a widow a threat as well as a nuisance. But must they put it in a sympathy letter?

Please tell your readers if they can't think of anything supportive to say to simply buy a card and sign it.

SAN FRANCISCO

Dear Fran: I'm sure your friend did not mean, "Get lost." She merely used an unfortunate combination of words.

The wise and worthy widows are not abandoned by real friends. They keep them — and make more.

Confidential to Sorry I Said It: Being sorry does not help the situation. Go in person to A and B and apologize. Write to C and D and tell them you were mistaken. And next time, be sure your brain is engaged before you put your mouth in gear.

Delinquency said dipping in Soviet

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union claims juvenile delinquency is declining here while it increases in the West.

This is attributed to what is depicted as the superiority of the Communist system which, says official propaganda, eliminates many of the economic and social causes of crime.

But Soviet authorities are far from maintaining that juvenile delinquency is about to wither away. They treat it as a matter of national concern and urge families, schools and community groups to combat it more vigorously.

"Crimes committed by minors (17 or younger) are significantly fewer than they were in the 1940-46 period," says G. Minkovsky, director of the Soviet Institute for the Study and Prevention of Crime.

He gave no absolute figures, as is the Soviet practice with information on any kind of crime. Juvenile delinquency here, he says, usually involves theft and forms of disorderly conduct, with only 20 per cent of the cases representing a "big social danger."

Minkovsky put much of the blame on bad family life.

Writing in the magazine Nauka i Zhizn—Science and Life—he said 35 to 40 per cent of juvenile delinquents come from families "where the parents misuse alcohol, follow an amoral way of life, or constantly engage in quarreling or other trouble-making."

Minkovsky put most of the rest of the blame on school troubles, idle time, drinking and movies and other entertainment that shows violence and high living.

"More than half the minors committing crimes are not sober at the time," he said, although the law forbids selling them liquor.

The institute director said that in general, juvenile crime is forestalled by keeping adolescents busy with group activities.

Castro blocks return of homesick Cubans

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — One of the world's strangest air routes, a twice-daily shuttle from Cuba, has brought 131,500 refugees during the first three years of operation, and 200 of them want to go back.

The Cuban Refugee Center reported that most airlift arrivals, now scattered through the 50 states, have adapted well to life in exile.

But after a few resorted to hijacking planes to go back home, the U.S. government last June offered a "reverse airlift" for any homesick Cubans. They would return free aboard the empty plane going to Cuba to bring refugees. But the program cannot start until the Fidel Castro government gives its assent. A State Department spokesman said an estimated 200 have expressed a desire to return. Most gave as their reason a wish to rejoin relatives in Cuba.

He may be teasing

By JEAN ADAMS

SWEET-SOUR: (Q.) I have a very sweet boy friend. Almost all the time he treats me like I want to be teased.

What I can't understand is that he says he's looking for somebody else to take to his prom. Here I am, listening to him, but he doesn't call my name!

He says if he takes me I'll have to spend a lot of money

Medicare claimants must file

EASTON — Medicare beneficiaries who have failed to submit claims for covered medical services received before Sept. 30, 1967, must do so before the year ends.

Edward F. Sullivan, district manager of the Easton, Pa. Social Security office, emphasized that once the Dec. 31, 1968 deadline is passed, reimbursement will not be made on medical services incurred between Oct. 1, 1966, and Sept. 30, 1967.

Sullivan said the time limit for making payment on medical services received before Oct. 1, 1966, expired on April 1, 1968.

Deadline for requesting payment on claims for medical services received from Oct. 1, 1967, to Sept. 30, is the end of 1969, he added.

The medical insurance plan reimburses to Medicare beneficiaries 80 per cent of their covered expenses each year after they have paid a $50 deductible.

Claims for reimbursement may be filed with the Pennsylvania Blue Shield, Box 65, Camp Hill, Pa.

on my gown and stuff. This makes no sense. Anyone he invites will have to do this.

I told him if he doesn't take me, I'm going with somebody else. Should I? What do you think is wrong with him?

F. in Spokane

(A.) He may be just teasing you. Some boys, even sweet ones, like to do this.

Or he may really WANT to take somebody else.

If he doesn't come through soon, accept a date with someone else. At the prom act like you're having a super time!

BOYS ON MIND: (Q.) My grades are dropping because I'm thinking about boys instead of my work. I used to get straight A's, but now I get A's, B's, and C's.

I can't get boys out of my mind altogether, because I'm 13 and this is the first time I've ever really been interested in them.

Carol in Atlantic City, N.J.

(A.) Carol, it's natural for you to be interested in boys and to have your mind on them. Other girls are the same. But they have to learn to budget their time and their thoughts.

and not let their studies go to pot. What other girls can do you can do. Good luck.

FIRST PARTY: (Q.) Is 11 old enough to have a mixed Christmas party?

—J. L. in Millinocket, Me.

(A.) In many areas 11- and 12-year-olds have boy-girl parties. In some communities such parties are socially accepted. In others they are not.

If other families in your neighborhood have had them in the past, go ahead.

Christmas is an ideal time for boys and girls to have their first party together. This is because so many holiday activities are possible and there's so much to talk about that talk comes easy. At a lively Christmas party shy youngsters can be kept busy. Instead of feeling gawky and embarrassed, they forget themselves and have a great time.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

New ribbon in the typewriter has exactly the same effect on me as brand new patent leather shoes have on a little girl. We both feel self-conscious. All the little girl can see are those shoes trotting along as if by their own volition, and all I can see are those black, black letters, looking as if they should be spelling out something momentous.

The problem is I haven't anything of great moment to say. The Thanksgiving engagements and every new baby is momentous to the people involved. The Christmas banquets and entertainments are momentous to the committees who've been working on them.

To the excited voices who called up to report they'd killed a deer, that buck is headline news. But none of them seems to require the crisp black letters that seem to call for an epigram or lines of deathless prose.

Of which I am fresh out. So we'll have to make do with observations like: It's a good thing that the exhibits Pocono Garden Club members worked so hard on for the Christmas show will be seen at their banquet, at least, although if they used fresh flowers, they're likely to look like my arrangements when I finally get around to noticing them two weeks later.

Or wondering how Mr. Greenjeans likes spending every Saturday at a local book fair? Having once started at the East Stroudsburg Elementary School fair several years ago, every school is clamoring for him. And I must say it adds to one's status as a grandmother to say you know him.

Garden Club banquet to star exhibits

TANNERSVILLE — The Pocono Garden Club will hold its annual Christmas banquet at Crescent Lodge, Paradise Valley on Tuesday, Dec. 10 at 6:30 p.m.

Walter Sebring will be master of ceremonies and Rev. Charles V. Naugle will give the invocation and a talk "Unto Us a Son is Given." Mrs. Samuel Sebring will be soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Stanley J. Hartman.

The exhibits which had been made for the cancelled Christmas Show will be on display as well as banquet exhibits. The Christmas Show committee expressed appreciation for the cooperation for their show which had to be canceled because of the weather.

Football Mothers plan banquet

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Football Mothers Christmas party will be held Dec. 11 at 6:30 p.m. at the Pen 'N Sword Restaurant. There will be an exchange of dollar gifts.

All former members of the Football Mothers Club are invited to join the members for the party.

Artists' conception of Christ changed with changing times

STROUDSBURG — Tracing "The Many Faces of Christ" from the early Christian era to the present, Dr. Madelon Powers also traced the changes in the church, in the society and in the concepts of the role of an artist in her talk at the American Assn. of University Women this week.

Dr. Powers former head of the art department of East Stroudsburg State College, illustrated the talk, given at the Stroud Community House, with slides representing the various periods.

Her talk was part of a continuing branch study of "Society's reflection in the Arts."

Dr. Powers also compared the representations of Buddha and of Christ, pointing out that once Buddha had been made to conform to the idea of super-perfection, his image remained constant through the centuries.

The early Christian artists also presented a stereotyped version of Christ, which didn't change until about the seventh century.

Shepherd The earliest known picture of Christ was found in the catacombs and dates from the Second or Third Century, she said.

said. These early pictures usually depicted Christ as the Good Shepherd, thus paralleling the role of the early priests.

The stiff, idealized figure was shown against a flat background, and were often painted by workmen who were not artists but craftsmen. The Christ of this early period was clean shaven because in that time only slaves were bearded.

As King With the growth in power of the church hierarchy, the pictures of Christ depicted him as a King, surrounded by apostles and angels. The Fifth Century saw the end of Christ as a Good Shepherd and presented him as a severe judge.

In the Dark Ages of the Seventh Century, art was confined to that found in manuscripts which were largely copies of older works, she said.

However with the beginning of Romanesque and Gothic Churches, art was revived in frescoes and in stained glass and sculpture, and Christ was shown with compassion.

The Renaissance worked into the background of the pictures of Christ familiar countryside and the humanizing of Christ began. He is depicted as more sensual and often shown in the agony of the cross or the Garden of Gethsemane.

Humanized With the Reformation, there was still further humanizing of Christ with faces in the paintings often copied from real life, so that the Last Supper could be taking place in a Flemish home, for instance, with familiar burghers around.

Dr. Powers admitted that it was difficult to find modern paintings of Christ, rarely a subject today for artists. However her slides did include some modern paintings including one by Gauguin and Dali.

She decried two typical comments about art "It looks so real" or "It's beautiful". "Real art need not necessarily look either real or beautiful", she said.

Dr. Mary Pickard presided at the brief business meeting. Dr. Powers was introduced by Mrs. Harold C. James.

The meeting was followed by refreshments with Mrs. Barthold and Mrs. Raymond Price presiding at a table decorated with clusters of holly, candles and a modern wood carving of Madonna and Child.

JACK O'BRIAN'S

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Joan Crawford's Cristina and husband Harvey Medlensky called it off already. NBC's panning to sign Dick Cavett, but the gray flannel fright flows on; they're afraid Johnny Carson will be insulted. ABC offered the suave midwesterner 16 weeks in prime evening time next summer plus two prime nights a week starting in Jan. of '70. Dick can have the Merv Griffin replacement for the nodding when Merv shifts to CBS-TV next Aug. . . . NBC, which didn't learn from its "21" quiz involvements and caught an FCC reprimand for "questionable" tactics in at least one show, hired a former Justice Department investigative lawyer as its Top Cop to keep its airways clean. "The Impossible Years."

going into the Radio City Music Hall for Christmas, doesn't have any wild nude scene as one of the film's press agents reported (and hundreds of protests followed).

"Cactus Flower," which just folded after years on Broadway, was financed personally by David Merrick for $80,000; David's profit — $150,000.

Two posthumous starters this week: the wills of Walter Wagner, who left almost nothing, and Lee Tracy, who left more than $2,000,000.

"Cabaret" keeps scorching along here, but lasted only 13 performances in London.

Tryout reviews for "40 Carats" suggest David Merrick has struck gold again. . . . Noel Coward's "Sweet Potato," an agglomeration of Noel's songs and jokes over some 40 years, folded (twice!) and on an investment of $225,000 managed to run into the red ink for $450,000, a neatly tragic trick.

Noel had nothing to do with its preparation or production.

India's Indira Gandhi is willing to adjudicate the Vietnamese War — if all sides would agree her findings are final. . . . The huge skyscrapers going up around Broadway and the midtown Easy Side make surrounding restaurants and hotels goldmines: Burlington House, on the site of the old Ziegfeld Theatre, will force its neighbor La Scala to expand.

Bobby Darin's manager Ed Burton died and then Bobby had a dream in which he was advised to change all his business associates so now he has a new agency, press agent and manager. . . . The Spanish Pavilion's catching on with the rich hungry set.

Former big-band leader Richard Maltby (recently running Lawrence Welk operations) decided it's a ripe time to go back behind his baton on the college dance circuit. . . . There's a lotta dough in the doughnut business: The Chock Full o' Nuts factory (claims to be the world's largest) in tropical Secaucus, N.J., produces more than a million sinkers a day.

Seafood dinners are getting more expensive because lobsters and crabmeat suppliers levitated their prices one-third. . . . You don't have to be Jewish: Oriental Irene Kuo, who owns the Lichee Tree restaurants, has her own late supper on the way home nights at the Stage Deli; her regular order — matzoh ball soup. . . . Berl Lahr died just a year ago and the world's still sadder.

More New Year's Eve prices: the 37th St. Hideaway will get $25 per person and filet mignon and champagne goes with it. Holland's Princess Christine is studying singing in Canada. Wanda Hendrix shelved plans to wed Steve Lamont to stay with her ailing father Max, 77. . . . Jeff Chandler's widow Marge is teaching drama at Santa Monica College.

Margaret O'Brien's fancy is a Peruvian. . . . Lauren Bacall's mom is okay after a Long Island hospital scare. . . . Leslie Caron and L.A. businessman Mike Laughlin have an early '69 date. . . . Brilliant writer-director Charles Brackett ("Sunset Blvd." etc.) is seriously ailing. . . . Eva Marie Saint has noxie: plays her "Stalking Moon" movie without face makeup; most actresses would rather perform nude than unadorned.

Only television star we know who never has worn makeup — Perry Como. . . . And if you wonder why Perry stopped wearing sweaters and such on television, and switched to inner jackets — it's simply because the Andy Williamses etc. swiped his sartorial signature. . . . Sister of a top star has everyone worried — she's sunk to picking up strangers in the street.

The Latin Quarter's due to go in for some naughtily quick-joke revues a la Laugh-In.

Whose immediate forbear is "Hellszapoppin"? The stars and two producers of Laugh-In are having quite differences over who invented the format: none of them did — it's as old as vaudeville and legitimate blackouts. . . . Naturally the Laugh-In producers have another television show using the same style.

Canada has a small publishing war — two books are out about its new mod-Prime Minister Trudeau and several more to come. . . . The bachelor swinger gets to Manhattan, often; rumors are he has a small incognito flat in the Gramercy Park area. . . . Edward G. Robinson, 75, keeps healthy frugging at discotecks.

Mums unsuited for garden

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Record Garden Correspondent

GARDEN MUMS: Do the florist's potted mums make good plants to grow outdoors after they have finished blooming indoors?

Most of the florist varieties grow too tall to make good garden plants, or flower so late that cold weather kills the blooms before they are fully developed. Others are not reliably hardy.

However, if you would like to take a chance to save your mum, cut off the tops when flowers fade and place the plant in a cool basement or sun porch. Keep the soil moist since the roots of mums are very thin and are not able to survive long dry periods.

In the spring, you can separate the plants (usually there are several in each pot) and set them out in warm weather. Cut them back to within a couple inches. Another method of handling the mum after weather warms up in spring is to place the pot outdoors and take cuttings from the new shoots.

A four-inch cutting taken in spring will produce a large blooming plant by fall. Cuttings can be easily rooted in clean sand or vermiculite. Pinch the plants no later than July 4, to produce more bushy, compact plants.

If next fall, the frost comes before your plants have finished blooming, lift them and place in a large pot or bucket for bloom indoors. You can dig them up even in full bud or full bloom.

STORING CARROTS: I've been asked for the best way to store carrots over winter. The oft-quoted method — using sand — is not a good way to keep carrots. Sand dries out and in the process will take moisture out of the carrots themselves, causing them to shrivel.

Many gardeners find the best way is to store them in earthen crocks. Put in a layer of carrots, then leaves on top of each layer. Some use a cover for the crock, others do not. We've tried it both ways and the carrots keep beautifully.

A galvanized garbage can sunk into the ground so that the top is at soil level makes a good container for storing carrots, parsnips, etc. Put the top on, and cover with leaves, straw etc.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "My neighbor has a bougainvillea in her home and it is beautiful. How can we start one indoors?"

Answer: Take short cuttings from side growth or tips six inches long, insert in a box of clean, moist sand for use a pot and cover with plastic sheet. Place in a warm spot, bright window, but not in direct sun. Never allow sand to dry out.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy of my bulletin, "Plant Propagation." It has many ways for starting plants.

Actor no longer fears success

NEW YORK (AP) — It's all right now to mention success to Anthony Quinn. He's changed.

"Until a year or so ago that word was anathema to me," says the craggy star, brushing aside a public image that never exactly exuded soaring humility.

"The problem was that I was always terrified by the responsibility of success. But I've begun to mature enough to realize that I am a success. There's too much evidence around—the amounts film studios pay me, the way people react."

Quinn came back on a visit to New York a few days ago on a double mission after a five-year absence centered in Italy. One reason was the premiere of his 96th film, "The Shoes of the Fisherman." The other was the unveiling at the Museum of Modern Art of an exhibit tracing his career. The only performer previously so honored was Sophia Loren.

"Material things don't mean a damn thing to me," he comments about the appurtenances of stardom.

"There's a wonderful thing that Thoreau said—he's my great mentor—'You're only as rich as the things you can do without.' I can do without a heluva lot."

In his free-association stream of conversation—"I only know what I think by talking about it"—Quinn always recalls the pre-cognition years—"I knew great privation as a kid."

Trying to trace him precisely through that phase is a labyrinthian labor. Each Quinn interview adds complicating but not necessarily contradictory detail. He was born in Chihuahua, Mexico, April 21, 1915, and soon thereafter the biographical maze rapidly tangles.

Would you believe he was a sparring partner for Primo Carnera at 16? Foreman of a mattress factory? Speaking at the side of Aimee Semple McPherson when he was 14? Or relevant to his new film, briefly dedicated to study for the priesthood?

In "The Shoes of the Fisherman," Quinn portrays a future Pope of the Roman Catholic Church who attempts to avert global holocaust.

"I used to be a Catholic," says Quinn, leading up to a traumatic transformation he experienced midway through the film. A month after shooting began, the star developed a face-swelling infection that halted everything for two weeks.

"I think of it as a kind of physical symptom of an internal conflict," he explains. Similar, lesser disturbances affected him twice previously, in roles he found particularly demanding.

But as a dedicated believer in Stanislawski involvement, he insists on "an almost mystical relationship with a role."

"I'm a very difficult man to live with when that's happening—my wives can tell you of the transformations."

"To a great extent I carry the character around with me until I take it on. But that's the real joy in acting."

"The wonderful luxury that I have had is playing all types of people."

Having worked all over the world in a career that began on stage in 1936 as a showcase theater operated by Mae West—"When I asked her for a raise from my $10 salary, she said she had been thinking of charging me to play it instead"—Quinn sees little difference between acting in one place or another.

His portrait of a Russian prelate in the new film just about completes his personal U.N. gallery of Italian, Greek, Indian, Arab, Spanish, Mexican, Chinese, Filipino, Polish and French characterizations.

Quinn would very much like to enact a Negro. Several years ago he invested $100,000 in a project based upon the life of Jean Christophe, the slave who became ruler of Haiti. That enterprise was shelved—"the time didn't seem right." He'd also like to do a film about Dixieland pianist Jellyroll Morton.

Half a dozen years ago, Quinn appeared in two Broadway stage productions, "Becket"—in which he played England's Henry II—and "Tchin-Tchin." He regards them as his farewell to Broadway.

Quinn has four children by his first wife, Katherine De Mille, from whom he was divorced in 1965, and three by his present spouse, Yolanda Addolori.

Next on the work agenda for his bounding energy—"a man like me should live a thousand years" he once remarked—is a film, "The Dream of Kings."

If there is a gap in his contentment in the face of palpable success, it is the reluctance of much of fandom to accept the cerebral Quinn who lives within the rough-hewn exterior. "I'm a voracious reader," he likes to say of that inner man. "I read three or four books a week, and I can't go to sleep any night until I've read for at least an hour."

Award winner

Zoe Caldwell, Tony Award-winning actress for her role in the current Broadway hit, "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," stands in front of a reproduction of the center panel of Michelangelo's huge fresco in the Sistine Chapel in Rome. For the first time since the painting was completed in 1512, cameras came within finger-touching distance of the 6,000-square-foot fresco. The stories contained in the Sistine Ceiling, interpreted by the off-screen voices of Miss Caldwell and Christopher Plummer, will come to dramatic life on The Secret of Michelangelo: Every Man's Dream, today at 9:30 p.m.

3♠ East 6♠ South

Opening lead — ten of diamonds.

One of the great fascinations of duplicate bridge is the opportunity it presents to compare your own results with the results obtained by other pairs who have played the same hands.

This deal occurred in a duplicate tournament and was played at 13 tables. Most of the North-South pairs arrived at a sound contract of six spades, but, in every case except one, failed by a trick.

Those pairs who stopped at four spades were far better off, since they wound up making five for a score of 650 points.

The play generally started with a diamond lead and continuation, South ruffing the second one. After drawing a round of trumps, declarer cashed the A-K-Q of hearts, discarding a club, but could not establish an extra heart trick because of the unlucky 5-1 break. As a result the contract went down one.

The lone declarer who succeeded in making the slam realized that the contract was a certainty if the hearts were divided 4-2 or 3-3, but that he could go down if they were divided 5-1.

He therefore took special precautions to guard against a 5-1 division. After ruffing a diamond at trick two, declarer cashed five trumps to produce this position:

North
♠ A K Q 8

Immaterial

East
♠ J 10 7 5 4
♥ J 10 7 5 4
♦ K 10
♣ K 10

East had to make a discard at this point. He could not afford a heart, which would permit declarer to ruff one of dummy's hearts and thus make the slam. So he discarded the ten of clubs, hoping West had the queen.

South now cashed the A-K-Q of hearts, and then, observing the futility of ruffing a heart, cashed the ace of clubs and caught the king.

'The Day Kennedy Was Shot'

JFK remark on Arlington hill proved prophetic

CHAPTER NINE

9 P.M.: The question of a grave site had not been settled. Was it to be Brookline, Mass., where the 35th President was born? In the family plot near Boston, where the infant Patrick Bouvier Kennedy had been buried just three months earlier? Washington? It had graves of two Presidents — Taft's at Arlington National Cemetery; Wilson's at the National (Episcopal) Cathedral — and the first president's was nearby, at Mount Vernon.

Someone recalled that in March, 1963, President Kennedy had strolled from the tomb of the Unknown Soldier down a cascading hill of hallowed ground at Arlington. Three hundred feet below the Curtis-Lea Mansion, he had paused to admire the exquisite vista presented on that sparkling day, with the city across the Potomac an expressive geometric background of boulevards, government structures, towering monuments. Standing among ranks of small white headstones for military and naval dead of wars, he had said, "I could stay here forever."

This, Sargent Shriver thought, was a last opportunity to grant his brother-in-law a wish. Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy was reached by telephone at Bethesda Naval Medical Center, where she was waiting with her brother-in-law Robert and others for the release of the dead President's body from autopsy and embalming. She greeted the recollection with approximation of joy. The decision was confirmed.

Supervisors of Arlington were summoned. Though darkness enveloped it now, they could show plots of the cemetery. For the usual interment only a four-foot-by-eight-foot section is allocated. A three-acre area including the spot where President Kennedy had stood was taken for him.

On the 17th-floor suite at Bethesda, Robert Kennedy placed an arm around his sister-in-law. He knew that each decision tonight represented a further wrench for her. But she had to be kept making decisions.

"We should get some clothes for Jack," he said softly. She had not thought of that. The body had to go back to the White House clad. She recalled a dark blue pinstrip suit and plain blue tie he liked. She remembered also a gold St. Christopher medal she had given him. She wanted that in the casket. Secret Service Agent Clint Hill telephoned the White House for the clothes to be brought to Bethesda.

At his home, The Elms, President Johnson was in the dining room picking at chicken. He had had only a cup of soup and a hamburger since morning, but eating now was only something to do to pass the time. Jack Valenti, Bill Moyers, Cliff Carter, and an old friend who had just arrived, Horace Busby, were with him. One of the characteristics the President had managed to hide from most people — except his wife and daughters — was a deep-set loneliness. He felt it now. No one called him "Lyndon." He was "Mister President." A determined remoteness had been imposed upon him. The man who enjoyed friendship and the rough-and-tough game of party politics was suddenly a solitary eminence. He had turned away from a television set. "Shut it off!" Johnson had snapped. Then, more softly, he said, "I just can't take that." He sat with a piece of chicken, trying to think of something that would keep him from remembering what he had seen and experienced that day. But he wiped his hands to pick up a phone and ask for the Secret Service Chief, James J. Rowley.

"Rufe did a brave thing today," he told Rowley, referring to Agent Youngblood. "He jumped on me and kept me down. I want you to do whatever you can, the best that can be done, for that boy." Rowley was pleased fleetingly by praise for one of his men, but Rowley knew that he himself was going to be every critic's target.

The Dallas County District Attorney, Henry Wade, returned to police headquarters after dinner. He called Captain Will Fritz of Homicide to an anteroom. Wade wanted to know just what evidence there was on Lee Harvey Oswald's role in the Kennedy assassination. The captain summarized all that investigations and questionings had turned up.

The district attorney was satisfied the Dallas Police Department was not dumping a weak case into his lap.

The Johnson friends and neighbors who had gathered unasked in the living room at The Elms began to leave. No one suggested that they leave. But Mrs. Johnson had gone to bed, still wracked by the intermittent spasms of shivering.

The President got up and away from the dining room table, and his aides rose. There was a sharp thud outside the window. Mr. Johnson stopped. "What was that?" he said. The watchful Rufus Youngblood said: "They're out there changing the house lines over to the White House number. I expect they're having a little trouble." Johnson shook his head. He was the only President ever to have witnessed an assassination, and no matter how high his courageous resolves, an unexpected noise from any quarter would trigger tension the rest of his life.

He started upstairs and waved Valenti and Moyers and Carter to follow. Their protests that they had no clothes, not a toothbrush between them, were futile.

Led into bedroom They were led into a bedroom. As the President began to undress, the three men noticed a small mass huddled on the right side of the big bed. They began to retreat. Mr. Johnson called them back. "We won't bother Mrs. Johnson," he said. His tone was pleading. "Sit with me for a while." The President disappeared into the bathroom and returned in striped pajamas and slippers. He assigned them rooms. His directing Carter to the absent Lynda's room (she was away at college) brought a smile to Moyers and Valenti, who envisioned this huge Texan reclining under a frilly canopy, with pandas and dolls on the counterpane, and Carter's ham-sized feet hanging over the foot of the bed.

Having assured their presence, the President slipped into the left side of the bed. Adjacent to it was a night table with a lamp and a telephone. Valenti found a chair and placed it near the phone. Bill Moyers stood. Cliff Carter was on the edge of the left side of the bed at the foot. The President placed an extra pillow at the head and composed himself, to look again at television and interpolate to his companions comments and ideas for things to be done as soon as morning came.

It was suggested that the emergency had such anarchistic possibilities that perhaps Mr. Johnson should make his address to Congress before the Kennedy funeral. This, he thought, could be interpreted as unseemly haste, even panic. However, he would accede to Congressional leaders on this decision.

The Kennedy people had not thought to tell the President when the funeral would be held. Moyers had been Johnson's liaison between the Executive Office Building and the White House, and it was Moyers' impression that the services would take place Monday. If that were so, the new President could not address both houses of Congress until Tuesday or Wednesday, a long time to keep the nation waiting for reassurance.

The bedclothes on the right side were turned back and Mrs. Johnson, huddled in robes, stood with a pillow in her hand and murmured: "Good night, all" and left the room for another. Before she did, the President leaned across the bed for a kiss, murmuring: "God bless you, honey." He returned to the conversation about a Cabinet meeting, a Security Council meeting, a White House staff meeting. "Maybe we ought to call those boys together at nine tomorrow morning, before the Cabinet meeting," and the address to both Houses.

"... and now," the voice of television said, "we bring you some biographical film clips of the new President of the United States—Lyndon Baines Johnson." Conversation stopped.

The men studied the film material. Seeing the expression of the man watching from the pillow, an uninformed viewer might have assessed the scene as a middle-aged man getting bad news from a consultation of young doctors.

The scene on the screen turned to Hyannis Port, in Massachusetts, a hedge and some homes on the edge of a surly sea. Had the President's father been told? No. His mother knew. She said she would attend early Mass in the morning.

Friday, Jim Bishop continues his hour-by-hour account of the tragic events on Nov. 22, 1963 which changed the nation.

Monday night climax

18 students to compete in spelling finals

STROUDSBURG — Eighteen semifinalists are ready for the finals of the first annual Monroe County Spelling Bee which will be held at 8 p.m. Monday at East Stroudsburg Area High School auditorium.

There will be six contestants from grades seven, eight and nine. Each of the six county schools will have one representative in each grade. The semifinalists have advanced from competition among nearly 2,500 Monroe County pupils. The spelling bee competition began in mid-October with homeroom competition in the schools.

Three grade champions will emerge Monday from the semifinal round and after a 20-minute intermission, the three will meet head-on to determine the grand champion.

The grand champion will receive a $100 savings bond and a 25-inch high trophy. The reserve grand champion will receive a $50 savings bond. The three grade champions will receive $25 savings bonds.

Each of the 18 semifinalists will receive silver medals before the start of Monday's competition.

Dr. John R. Wildrick, assistant to the president at East Stroudsburg State College, will be spellmaster. Judges will be Dr. Esther Larson, chairman of the English Department at ESSC, and Carl T. Secor, former supervising principal at East Stroudsburg Area High School.

Bruce P. Frassinelli, a member of the board of directors of the Optimist Club of the Stroudsburgs, is tournament director.

Seventh grade semifinalists are: Peter Fitzsimmons, Pocono Central Catholic; Amy Jankoski, Pleasant Valley; Claire Kasperski, Notre Dame; Debra Lutz, Pocono Mountain; Lynne Miller, East Stroudsburg and Paula Weary, Stroudsburg.

Eighth grade semifinalists are: Susan Conklin, Pleasant Valley; Robert Lake, Stroudsburg; Neil Landi, Pocono Mountain; Roseanne Muehler, East Stroudsburg; Theresa Resh, Notre Dame, and Eileen Shannon, Pocono Central Catholic.

Ninth grade semifinalists are: Susan Buskirk, Pleasant Valley; Judy Funk, Pocono Mountain; Robert Jacobs, Stroudsburg; John Sibley Jr., East Stroudsburg; Theodore Stevens, Notre Dame and Karen Verwey, Pocono Central Catholic.

Arrowhead Lake president heads Vacationland group

LAKE HARMONY — Richard Norman of Arrowhead Lake was elected president of the Pennsylvania Vacationland Developers Assn. at a meeting this week at Split Rock Lodge.

Norman succeeds J. Douglas Ritchie of Hemlock Farms.

Other officers elected were John Larsen of Locust Lake, vice-president; Monas Shellenberger, of White Haven, Poconos, secretary and William Nixon, treasurer, of Pocono Farms.

Named to the board of directors were Ritchie, Nixon, Leon Ross of Indian Mountain Lake; Ken Cole of Lake Mead; Lou Larsen of Locust Lake; Jessie Flory, East Stroudsburg; Leo Achterman Jr., Stroudsburg engineer; Curt Kemmerer, Lake Hauto, and Attorney Harry Lee of Stroudsburg.

Charles Swalley of Harrisburg, the association's solicitor reviewed the county personal tax situations and the sewage facilities act as it affects the developers.

Ritchie whose term of office ends in December reviewed the highlights of the past year. He noted that membership had increased tremendously and that the associate membership program exceeded its 1968 goal.

He also noted the association's work in helping to outline a feasible and workable sewage facilities act. He said that Judge Woodside, the firm's consultant appeared at a special Senate hearing relating to the use of pesticides to combat the Gypsy Moths. The association favored the Pennsylvania Dept. of Forest and Water's strong control of using pesticides to combat Gypsy Moth.

He praised Achterman's efforts as a member of the state's sewage advisory council by lending his experience in this field.

Ritchie also announced that a pilot on-site sewage plant was being developed for Western Heritage and that the State Dept. of Health was showing considerable interest in the project.

He said that the topic of

White Heron's flying manager offers solution to hijacking

By PETE GRADY

Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — A flying manager and captain for Eastern Airlines who lives near White Heron Lake, Marshalls Creek, offered a possible deterrent to the recent rash of U.S. commercial planes hijacked to Cuba.

Capt. Lloyd E. Sebring said Wednesday that a substantial reward might be paid to Castro for the return of the hijackers.

Since 1961, four Eastern Airlines planes have been hijacked to Cuba, most of them from Miami. An estimated total of 15 U.S. commercial airline planes have been forced to Cuba since 1961.

General passenger reaction on being hijacked to Cuba is one of mixed annoyance tempered by measured calm, according to Eastern Airlines official with the New York public relations department.

"Once they land at Cuba," the official said, "the first thing the passengers want to do is to try to call home and check on their luggage. They're not really upset and when they return to the states they rather look forward to telling their friends the story of their forced flight."

Death penalty

The punishment for piracy of a United States commercial or military plane is the death penalty, if a jury so recommends, and a 20-year prison sentence if the death penalty is not imposed.

Other penalties include $1,000 or one-year prison term for carrying a concealed weapon aboard a plane; $10,000 or 20 years for interfering with the duties of the flight crew or flight attendants in the aircraft.

Capt. Lloyd E. Sebring, of White Heron Lake, Marshalls Creek, a flying manager with Eastern Airlines, points to Cuba where four Eastern Airlines planes have been hijacked since 1961.

and life imprisonment if a weapon is used while interfering with a member or members of the flight crew.

Two U.S. planes were hijacked to Cuba last weekend. A Pan American World Airways plane was forced to fly to Cuba Sunday and an Eastern Airlines Chicago-to-Miami flight was forced to Cuba by hijackers Saturday night.

A 12-year veteran with Eastern Airlines Capt. Sebring knows three Eastern Airlines pilots who have had their planes hijacked to Cuba. He has not yet talked to any one of the three pilots but he knows only too well that there isn't very much a pilot can do once a hijacker points a gun at an airline hostess or another crew member.

Passenger concern

"Our primary concern is passenger safety," Sebring said. "We just can't take a chance on doing something about a man with a gun aimed at your head."

Sebring explained the numerous dangers involved if bullets started flying in a plane cockpit. "A bullet could sever the hydraulic or landing gear controls, it could hit a wire in the electrical system and cause a fire, a bullet could knock out a critical support member of the plane's pressurized system, and this could lead to rapid depressurization."

Published instrument approach procedures for Havana and other Cuban airports are part of the necessary precautions taken by Eastern Airlines in the event one of their planes is hijacked, Sebring said.

The hijacker usually gains entrance to the plane's cockpit by pulling a weapon on the stewardess and forcing her to open the door to the cockpit, Sebring added.

Cuba has never held a U.S. plane, Sebring noted, but it threatened to do so when the U.S. government impounded some of Cuba's airline's planes because of non-payment of bills.

When a U.S. plane is hijacked to Cuba and lands at a Cuban airport, the Cuban government insists that the U.S. government supply another plane to take the hijacked passengers back to the United States. The hijacked passengers are taken to another Cuban airport, sometimes at night, but most of the time during the day, during which they are given a special tour of certain select villages, obviously for propaganda's sake.

Firemen battle a fire at Pocono Gardens Lodge in Paradise Valley Wednesday. The blaze destroyed the kitchen and part of the dining room, which will be re-built. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Fire hits Pocono Gardens, dining area will be rebuilt

PARADISE VALLEY — A fire early Wednesday morning which destroyed part of Pocono Gardens Lodge is believed by Mount Pocono Fire Chief Ernest Bisbing to have been accidental in nature.

Bisbing said the fire, which destroyed the kitchen and a portion of the dining room, originated in the kitchen of the lodge "at or near the deep fryers."

Barrett Township firemen were first on the scene after employees at the lodge were awakened about 5:30 a.m. by the smell of smoke.

Barrett Fire Chief Charles Ayers called Mount Pocono Fire Co. at 5:45 a.m. for assistance. Firemen from both companies battled the blaze until 10 a.m. before leaving the resort.

Bisbing noted that firemen had no water problem at the scene as there are two outdoor and one indoor swimming pools, three overflowing wells, and Paradise Creek "right on the property" from which water could have been taken had a big need for water occurred.

The kitchen, a two-story building, with sleeping quarters for employees on the second floor was destroyed and the dining room adjoining the kitchen received minor fire damage but considerable smoke and water damage.

Eugene Rossi, one of the owners of the honeymoon resort, Wednesday night said the building will be rebuilt and repairs and new construction of the dining room will be started in the near future.

Rossi said no estimate of damage has been made but an inventory is in progress and once it is completed an estimate can be made.

He also said that there is insurance on the property but he did not know at the moment which policy covered the damaged area nor the amount of coverage.

Stroud Twp places ban on hustlers

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Township will advertise and enact a proposed ordinance to restrict movement of soliciting by "hucksters and hustlers" within the township for protection of its 7,000 residents.

Township solicitor D.A. Hansen was authorized during the regular Wednesday night meeting of the board of supervisors to proceed with the proposed ordinance to control solicitation.

Hansen said the ordinance was definitely not set up to restrict charitable community agencies who will be exempt from payment for permits.

Permits will be necessary for identification purposes and control.

Non-charitable solicitors will be required to have a permit and identification card with photograph at a cost of $50 for one year for each individual and $25 for each additional person in the soliciting group.

The supervisors adopted a resolution to set up a pension plan to include both a Police Pension Fund and a Municipal Employment Pension Fund. All fulltime employees would be covered. Retirement for police is age 55 and for municipal personnel, age 65.

Supervisor James Somers, Jr. said "We should make them (municipal jobs) more attractive and beneficial. They are entitled to this. Some of the men have worked for 30 years without this (pension) benefit."

A special meeting of the board of supervisors will be held Monday, Dec. 30.

Stroudsburg council opposes building YDC in Slate Belt

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Borough Council Wednesday night strongly and unanimously voted to back opposition to the construction of the Youth Development Center in Upper Mount Bethel Township.

The move was made at the request of Neil Brodt, a councilman from Portland. A letter will be written stating the Stroudsburg council's objection to the center and will be sent to the Portland council.

Council members were very much in agreement that the presence of a reformatory so close to an area known for its tourist industry and attractions would be a detriment to the good name of the area.

Also in evidence was the opinion that certain areas in the vicinity of Philadelphia would be better suited for the location of such a center.

Mrs. Alice Patterson, 118 N. Third St., Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Alma Nichols, East Stroudsburg R.D. 2, representing the Better Housing Council, appeared before council to inquire what action had been taken on the complaint concerning the condition of the home of Ben Adams, 165 N. Third St., Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Patterson was at the November meeting of council and requested that borough officials take action condemning the Adams' home because of its unfit condition.

Mayor Joseph Small assured Mrs. Patterson that the Health Department had notified Adams that he must take action to repair his house to meet minimum housing standards or take action to tear the building down.

Mrs. Patterson asked Mayor Small how long it would take for improvements to be seen. In reply, Small said the department gave Adams 90 days in which to take action.

He added that he questioned the amount of time, but said that was what the health officials decided upon.

Mrs. Patterson also complained about the general condition of N. Third St., saying, "We have got to do something about N. Third moves in like they did on Lincoln Ave. It is no longer just a street, but it's an avenue."

She indicated that in particular some action should be taken with the house located at 122 N. Third St., which she claimed was unfit for habitation.

Council President Joe Wallace assured Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Nichols that council would follow through completely on the Adams property and any other unfit property even to the extent of taking the matter to the courts if that proved necessary.

Small asked council to approve the hiring of another meter attendant to fill a position vacated due to a resignation. He suggested hiring a male for the job and suggested a man now working in the borough's control center.

The suggestion touched off a debate between councilmen Steve Sackley, Howard (Bud) Altomus and Small, with Small being on the minority side.

Stroud Twp. picks Martin police chief

STROUDSBURG — Charles Martin, assistant chief of police for Stroud Township, was appointed acting chief of police by the Stroud Township board of supervisors Wednesday night.

The appointment, effective Jan. 1, was made upon recommendation by supervisor James Somers, Jr., after the resignation by retirement was accepted for Stroud Township Police Chief H.W. Tebbis.

Martin "should be given the opportunity to run the department, to prove his ability to run it," Somers said. Somers also recommended that the position of police commissioner be abolished but no action was taken.

Lester Rice, Stroud Township Fire Chief, was named police commissioner last April with administrative authority over police chief Tebbis.

Chief Tebbis was not present during the meeting. When contacted he said he regretted that the township "wants it that way."

Tebbis recalls being sworn in by justice of the peace, William Walton on Aug. 1, 1959, as a member of the Stroud Township police force.

Tebbis said he has acted as police chief most of the 15 and a half years and officially as chief for the past six years.

Somers said he wanted to clear up any misunderstanding by the public about the resignation and said "Chief Tebbis was not forced out by any means and is welcome to stay."

Secretary, Harold E. Albert was authorized to contact Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg Borough councils to have the township police sworn in both boroughs. In turn, the borough police would be sworn in by the township.

Somers, making the recommendation, said this would "establish inter-municipal cooperation within police departments the same as is shared now by the fire departments."

Bomb scares hit three area schools

STROUDSBURG — Three schools in the Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg area were hit with bomb scares Wednesday.

East Stroudsburg High School received a telephone call at 9:30 a.m. telling of a bomb that would explode sometime in the afternoon.

School officials dismissed the school at 12:30 p.m.

In the early afternoon, Stroudsburg High School and East Stroudsburg State College received similar calls.

Stroudsburg High School dismissed for the day at 2:20 p.m.

Melchoir Eilenberger, ex-teacher, dies at 77

MINISINK HILLS — Melchoir H. Eilenberger Sr., 77, died Wednesday morning in his Minisink Hills home.

Born in Minisink Hills, he was a son of the late Fred and Amy Heller Eilenberger and he had lived his lifetime in the area.

Mrs. Eilenberger taught school in Monroe County and had also been employed by Line Material Co., East Stroudsburg.

He was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Minisink Hills, and had served as superintendent of the church Sunday school for many years.

He was a 1911 graduate of East Stroudsburg Normal School.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Elsie Ruth Eilenberger, at home; two daughters, Mrs.

Frances Dellaven, Allentown, and Mrs. Jane Frantz, Minisink Hills; two sons, Fred Eilenberger, Linden, N.J., and Melchoir Eilenberger Jr., Minisink Hills; two grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Also, a brother, Frank Eilenberger, Stroudsburg, and four sisters, Mrs. Vera Irvin, Cape Canaveral, Fla.; Miss Sarah Eilenberger, Miss Margaret Eilenberger, and Mrs. Sarah Kintner, all of Minisink Hills.

Services will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. in the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home with the Rev. Graham Rinehart officiating.

Burial will be in Laurelwood Cemetery. Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Friday after 7 p.m.

Hunter bags 10-pointer

NEWFOUNDLAND — Henry "Hank" Arneberg, who will be remembered by sports fans in the Poconos as one of the "winningest" coaches ever to field a basketball team, was a winner the first day of buck season, bringing home a "perfect" ten-point buck by 10 a.m.

Now a faculty member at the Wallenpaupack Area Joint High School, Arneberg was thrilled with the prize specimen and plans to have the tremendous rack mounted to back up the stories he will be able to tell guests at The Sterling Inn, where he and Mrs. Arneberg are innkeepers.

Chorus to sing

EAST STROUDSBURG — St. Matthew's School chorus will sing and there will be a Christmas reading at the meeting of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Luke's and St. Matthew's on Wednesday, Dec. 11, at 8 p.m. in St. Matthew's School auditorium.

Cheyney crushes ESSC, 98-58

Last half play boosts visitors

EAST STROUDSBURG — Cheyney State College opened its 1968-1969 basketball season, in familiar fashion Wednesday night with a 98-58 victory over East Stroudsburg State College before 1,800 fans at Koehler Field House.

The Wolves, seeking their fifth straight Eastern Division title in the Pennsylvania State College Conference, alternated deliberate offense with a fast break to complement a solid defense that left little doubt in the outcome of the contest from the opening whistle.

Cheyney's towering quintet found the range after two fruitless minutes and quickly vaulted into a 14-2 advantage that took all doubt out of the contest, although the Warriors did battle back to a 37-27 deficit at the halfway mark.

The second half was all Cheyney as the Wolves hit on their first four shots from the field and made good on 23 of 41 field goal attempts for a 56.1 percentage figure.

Hal Booker, returning after a year's absence, teamed with Willie Kirkland to control both boards and give the visiting Wolves repeated shots, while Toby Tyler added a third strong hand on the boards.

Early advantage
Tyler sent the Wolves into a 3-0 lead before Steve Guter hit from the side. Tyler made it 5-2 with a layup, while Booker drove three straight field goals into the cords, before Kirkland added a pair and the Wolves were howling by a 14-2 count, with 15:02 remaining in the first half.

But, it was at this point that Guter, Fred Richter and Jim Grier notched goals from the floor, the latter on the first of two goal tending charges leveled against Booker, and ESSC trailed, 18-8.

However, each time the Warriors threatened to fight their way back into the game, Cheyney pulled itself together and opened a wider advantage.

The advantage went to 33-17 and 35-21 before Richter, Rich Spear and Guter counter-balanced a two-pointer by Tyler right before the halftime horn and the score favored the Wolves, 37-27.

Kirkland, Jim Wilson and Booker registered field goals that in order to open the second half as the Wolves presented a perfect shooting display.

Cheyney presented too much speed, too much defense and strong rebounding power the remainder of the distance to notch its opening day victory. The loss also came on opening day for the Warriors.

Blitman replaced all his regulars except Kirkland with 11 minutes remaining in the game.

Booker paced the winning point parade with 19, with 13 coming in the first half. Kirkland added 17, with 13 in the second half. Tyler was third in line with 14 counters, all in the opening 20 minutes of play.

Richter was number one for ESSC, connecting for 12 counters, seven in the first half. Bob Pedrick was next in line with 11 points, all in the second half.

Cheyney made good on 40 of 81 shots from the floor for 49.4 per cent. The Wolves were 43.6 per cent in the first half on a 17 for 39 showing and 23 for 41 and 56.1 per cent in the second half.

ESSC finished with 20 for 61 from the floor and 32.8 per cent. They were 11 for 29 in the first half for 37.9 per cent and nine for 32 in the second half for 28.1 per cent.

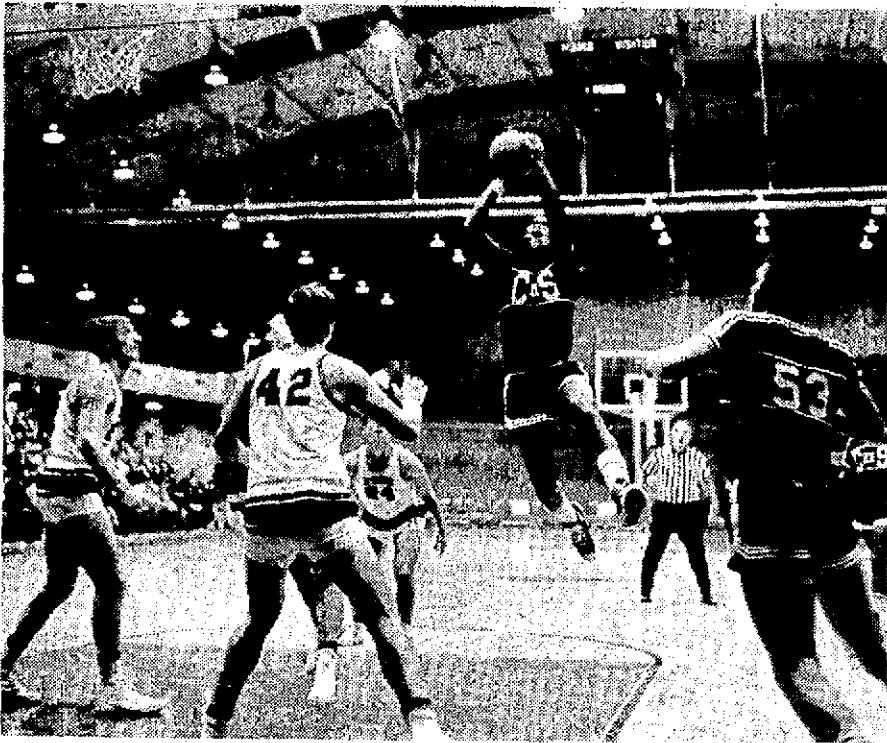

The Wolves found the range on 18 of 27 free throws for 66.7 per cent. They were three for five and 60 per cent in the first half and 15 for 22 and 68.2 per cent during the final 20 minutes.

ESSC found the range on 18 of 31 free throws for 58.1 per cent. The charges of Coach Ken Sisson hit on five of nine for 55.6 per cent in the first half and 13 of 22 for 59.1 per cent in the final 20 minutes of play.

Cheyney, Edinboro selected as favorites in conference

WEST CHESTER — Cheyney and Edinboro are the overwhelming choices of the league's 13 coaches to repeat as divisional champions in the Pennsylvania State College Basketball Conference this winter.

The Wolves of Hal Blitman, who lost to Edinboro in the conference championship game a year ago, drew the first place votes of all eight Eastern Division coaches in a poll conducted by the conference publicity department.

The Highlanders of Jim McDonald pulled in four out of a possible five first place votes in the Western Division.

McDonald, who admits to being a "born pessimist," cast his first place vote for California, and selected his Edinboro team to finish second in the West.

Loses leader
"We have pretty fair people," stated McDonald, "but it's like playing without a quarterback. Mick Unick, our big (6-9) center who led the team in rebounds and was second in scoring last year, dropped out of school."

"We also lost the big center (6-7 Jim Mann) off last year's freshman team. He dropped out for surgery on his knee. He had a blood clot. But Mann will be back for the second semester.

"Clarion has the best personnel in the West. They have a 6-10 boy and three or four that are 6-5 and 6-6, and a couple more all-conference fellows who were ineligible last year. They also have a new gym."

The lid came off McDonald's pessimism briefly when he added: "If they (Clarion) don't get us in the first half, we'll get them in the second. That's when this 6-7, 230-pound center (Mann) will be back."

California coach Myless Withey agrees with McDonald that Unick's absence has balanced things off in the West.

"Edinboro would have run all over the division if they had him," declared Withey. "Now we all have a shot."

Optimistic vote
That may not be the case in the East. Even Blitman voted for his Cheyney Wolves to sweep the division. The reason is clear. Hal Booker is back.

"I'm optimistic," Blitman said.

Booker, 6-11 former All-American who led the nation in field goal percentage, has returned to the Wolves' camp after a year's absence during which he played for an industrial union team.

More height is provided by 6-8 Wilbur Kirkland, 6-6 Dick (Toby) Tyler, 6-6 Richard Gordon and 6-4 Leroy Eldridge.

Although losing the conference title to Edinboro (19-5) a year ago, Cheyney (22-7) went on to capture the small college National Collegiate Athletic Assn. Eastern Regional championship.

Mansfield and Millersville — which earned a third-straight trip to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic finals in California — will land second and third place, respectively, in the Eastern Division, according to the coaches.

Millersville plays at East Stroudsburg on Saturday.

76ers win, hold Hayes to new 20

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia 76ers held Elvin Hayes to 20 points Wednesday night and posted a 110-99 victory over the San Diego Rockets in a National Basketball Association game.

Handicapped by four fouls in the first period, Hayes' point production was 10 below his league-leading average.

The 76ers overcame a 54-50 halftime deficit to win. Two jump shots by Hal Greer and a baseline field goal by Chet Walker shot the 76ers ahead 60-54 at the outset of the second half.

They moved in front 82-78 as the third period ended, and stayed safely ahead throughout the final period.

A San Diego flurry cut the margin to 98-93 with 5:20 left.

Montclair grid coach resigns

UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. (UPI)—Henry Ferris left his post as head football coach at Montclair State College Wednesday to devote full time as an associate professor of physical education at the school.

Ferris was named Indians coach in August, 1966, and compiled a 9-17 record during the three years of his tenure. His 1968 squad has a 2-7 mark.

Coach feels '68 Wolves rate top

EAST STROUDSBURG — Hal Blitman, Cheyney State College's ever-winning basketball coach, feels that this edition of the Wolves could be the best he has ever put together.

This is a bold statement for the ever-cautious coach, who usually dwells on the pessimistic side of any issue.

However, he was quick to point out that he would like to reserve judgement on his team until it plays several games.

Blitman has led the Wolves to four straight titles in the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania State College Conference and to the conference crown in three of the last four years, losing to Edinboro, Western Division king, last year.

The Wolves were impressive Wednesday night as they defeated East Stroudsburg State College by 40 points, 98-58, although with 11 minutes remaining in the contest Willie Kirkland was the only regular in the lineup.

Blitman, currently in his first year as basketball coach and athletic director, was emphatic in his belief that the football program isn't dead at Cheyney, despite the fact the school had to curtail the sport last year when it was only able to field 14 players late in the season.

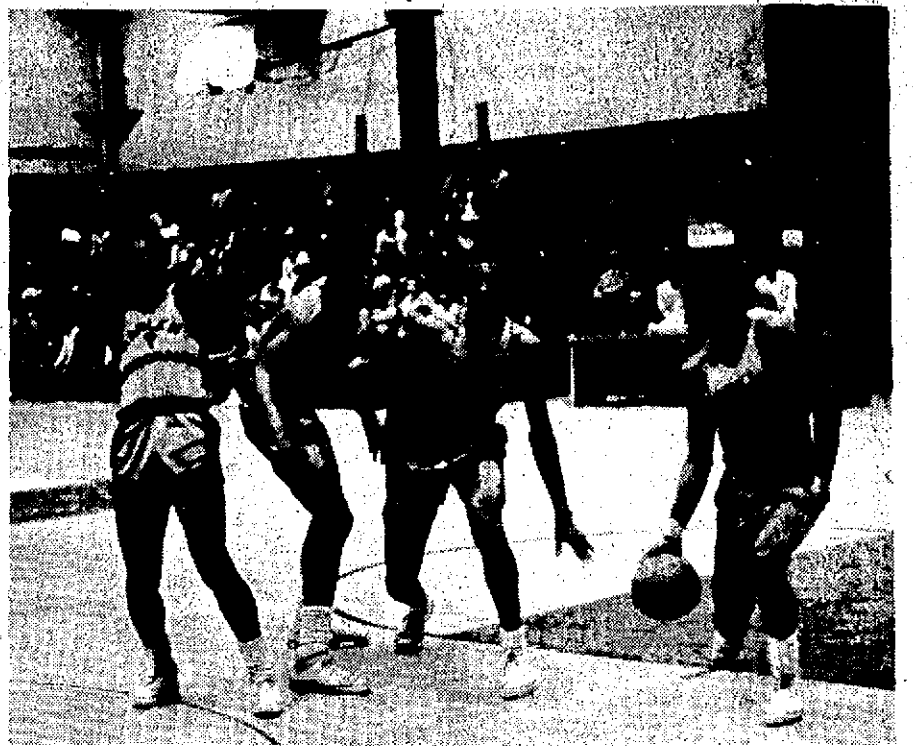

"We are educators and coaches, with emphasis on the former," Blitman said as he explained that he was hopeful the football program would be rebuilt to a solid standing sport on campus.

Blitman was quick to point out the recent demonstrations on campus have in no way injured the athletic program. "These kids of mine aren't interested in demonstrations. They just want to play basketball and get an education," the veteran coach explained.

The athletic director said that none of the athletes at Cheyney have been mixed up in the demonstration since the beginning.

Wednesday night's game was originally scheduled for Cheyney, but was shifted to East Stroudsburg when Cheyney had to close its campus, because of an epidemic of flu. The campus has since reopened and the second half contest between the Warriors and Wolves will be played at Cheyney.

Blitman picked Millersville as the team to beat in the East, followed by Mansfield and Bloomsburg. He also spoke highly of Kutztown.

O. J. scores again — 'Player of Year'

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson continued his one man assault on collegiate football honors for 1968 Wednesday when the explosive All America from Southern California ran off with United Press International's Player of the Year award for the second consecutive season.

Simpson, the first player in the history of the UPI All America team to be selected unanimously, captured 169 of 194 votes of the nation's sportswriters and broadcasters, gaining the award virtually uncontested.

The sensational running back, a landslide winner of the Heisman Trophy, scored 22 touchdowns in leading Southern California to a 9-0-1 record, a No. 2 national ranking and a berth in the Rose Bowl against top ranked Ohio State.

Simpson, a 6-foot-2, 207-pounder who combines the blazing speed of a halfback with the bruising power of a fullback, compiled probably the best two-year record in the history of college football.

He gained 3,242 yards in his two years at Southern Cal, missing the three-year national mark set by Eugene "Mercury" Morris of West Texas State this year by only 265 yards.

Carrying over 30 times a game, Simpson did manage to break Morris' single season rushing mark with 1,709 yards. He scored 35 touchdowns in his two years at Southern Cal after breaking all junior college rushing and scoring records at San Francisco City College, where he scored 54 touchdowns in two years. Simpson also had a pair of touchdowns in the Trojans' Rose Bowl victory over Indiana.

Only 11 players received votes in the balloting for Player of the Year, with Leroy Keyes of Purdue and Notre Dame's Terry Hanratty, a pair of All Americans, tying for second with five votes each. Bobby Douglass, the Kansas quarterback, received four votes while running backs Ron Johnson of Michigan and Chris Gilbert of Texas, and Ted Kwalick of Penn State and defensive back Jake Scott of Georgia had two votes each.

Receiving single votes were Richmond Flowers, Tennessee's tailback, and quarterbacks Cleve Bryant of Ohio University and Brian Dowling of Yale.

Simpson, who rose from a San Francisco street gang to become what many experts believe to be the greatest runner in the history of college football, is certain to be the No. 1 draft choice when the pro leagues hold their annual selection meeting Jan. 28 in New York. As of now, Simpson seems bound for either Philadelphia or Buffalo.

Howe scores 700th career goal

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Gordie Howe's 700th career goal lifted Detroit into a 1-1 tie with Pittsburgh Wednesday night and the Red Wings went on to walloping the Penguins 7-2 in a National Hockey League inter-division clash.

Howe, most prolific scorer in National Hockey League history, rammed home his 12th goal of the season at 7:13 of the first period and offset Pittsburgh's first score by Keith McCreary. Six players figured in the Detroit scoring.

Besides Howe, Nick Libett had two goals and Bruce MacGregor, Gary Unger, Bobby Baun and Dan Lawson one each. Billy Harris registered the second goal for Pittsburgh, which saw a six-game unbeaten streak come to an end.

Celtics nip Milwaukee 101-99

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Celtics, paced by the 28-point shooting of veteran Bailey Howell, pulled out a 101-99 come from behind National Basketball Association win over the Milwaukee Bucks at Boston Garden Wednesday night.

Trying to win its first game in four tries this season, the Bucks pressed Boston hard in the first half, taking a 59-55 lead into halftime, but blew an 11-point lead in the third quarter.

Milwaukee was bent on revenge, after losing 137-115 one night earlier to the Celtics in Milwaukee. Wayne Embry and Len Chappell controlled the backboards, and midway through the third stanza the Bucks had built up an 11-point lead, 77-66.

Boston countered with a solid defense and with Bailey Howell and player-coach Bill Russell blocking shots, the Celtics limited the Bucks to just 16 points in the fourth period.

JIM MURRAY Walking X-ray

When they finally stamped out the flames and put glycerine on the parts of his skin that were melting off in the heat, Jimmy Hurtubise could have rented himself out as a decoration for a Halloween party.

At the burns center in San Antonio where they rushed him, Jim was officially listed as one of the first cremation survivors in history. But he even found time to joke. "Dammit, I said RARE!" he told the medics as he surveyed the charred 40 per cent of his skin surface in legs, hands, arms and face.

"You could see the nerve endings, the bones, the tendons, joints and arteries," he recalled. "Each day, they peeled some more skin off and removed the bacteria. I looked like a walking X-ray."

"Herky," as he was known around the racetrack, was as fascinated as the doctors. He was getting a free anatomy lesson. If it weren't for the pain, he could have lectured at McGill's. "I told the doctor it didn't hurt, but he could see right through me," quipped Jim.

When it came time to start the painful grafts, Jim had a practical suggestion. He wanted his fingers crimped so that they could just naturally fit around a steering wheel. The doctors humored him because they figured the next steering wheel he would be behind was one on a hearse. They rebuilt the hand like a mitten first, and then began to cut fingers into it.

Heads for a beer joint

At a time when they said Jimmy would never drive again, he sneaked out of the hospital and headed for a beer joint. He opened the car door with his feet, drove it with his elbows. He could drive a car better with no hands than some people could with three.

Herky had always been "Hurtling" Hurtubise. He led Indianapolis one year in one of the Neanderthal Novis, those quaint, old stone-wheelers that had too much horsepower for the chassis, wheels, suspension or brakes, and usually fell apart sometime in the parade lap. Hurtubise coaxed 102 laps out of his. His brakes quit 30 laps before he did. When he was black-flagged, he was dropping more oil than a torpedoeed tanker.

Herky hit the incinerator a week after the ill-fated 1964 Indy. He was at Milwaukee, and he was running third to Rodger Ward and A. J. Foyt, but was gaining on them at the rate of 5 miles an hour when Ward's rear suspension froze. Foyt swerved, and Hurtubise went up over the top of Foyt's car, climbed the wall and came down on fire. Doctors figured that the steering wheel, which pierced his lungs, may have prevented him from sucking in a mouthful of flame which would have charred his vital organs.

That was in June, 1964, and by the following spring, Herky had more bolts in him than his car, yet he finished fourth at Phoenix. There were those who thought Herky was a jerk for getting in anything that wasn't horse-drawn, but Hurtubise flies his own plane, builds his own cars, and has been so busy he can't find the time to let the surgeons make a pinky on his right hand yet.

He will be flying over the water at Lake Havasu in a twin-engine catamaran outboard, the "Pepsi Special," in the world's championship outboard races this weekend, an 8-hour, sun-and-sea survival test, and he will be at Indy in the top stock-car races next year. "And just think," he grins. "Like Tammany Hall. I owe it all to graft."

Okla State grid coach faces alumni's wrath

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI)—

A move to fire Oklahoma State University football coach Phil Cutchin drew an alumni offer Wednesday to raise $46,000 to buy his contract.

The school's athletic cabinet called a meeting for 8 p.m. CST Wednesday, the second in two days, to discuss Cutchin's future.

Dr. Randall Jones, cabinet chairman, said "part of this session no doubt will involve the football program."

He declined to speculate on what action, if any, the cabinet would take.

Cutchin's office said the coach was "unavailable for comment."

Al Fiegel of Oklahoma City, spokesman for a group of 15 alumni who met with the cabinet Tuesday, said prior to Wednesday night's session alumni told the cabinet they were willing to raise the money to fulfill Cutchin's contract. It has two years to run at $23,260 a year.

"I'll be terribly disappointed, and I am sure thousands of alumni will be disappointed, if we don't wind up with a new coach," Fiegel said.

Fiegel issued a public appeal at a news conference in Oklahoma City for alumni and students to wire or telephone their sentiments to OSU president Robert Kamm and cabinet members prior to the Wednesday night meeting.

"Undoubtedly, such sentiments will aid these administrators in making a public decision," Fiegel said.

Fiegel said he hoped the cabinet would make "a definite decision" Wednesday night.

Cutchin has never had a winning season in his six years at OSU. He closed the current season at 3-7, with a 41-7 loss to cross-state rival Oklahoma University last Saturday.

Jones said any recommendation by the athletic cabinet would be forwarded to Kamm, who would then pass it on to OSU regents, where any final action would have to be taken. Next scheduled meeting of regents is Dec. 11-12.

Clay owed $380,000; needs bouts

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI)—

Former heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay said Wednesday he hoped eventually to return to the ring to pay off some $380,000 in debts.

"I'll only return to the ring to pay off my debts," said Clay, who prefers to be called Muhammad Ali.

Clay claimed his steep debts include money owed his attorneys, court fees, alimony for his first wife and support of his mother.

He spoke before a crowd of about 800 students and faculty in the Fairleigh Dickinson University gymnasium. He is currently on a national speaking tour of 65 colleges and universities.

Clay, under indictment for his refusal to enter the military, reeled off one of his less-than-Longfellow poems to illustrate his refusal to enter the service: "Clean out my cell, I'm going to jail; 'Better in bed than in Vietnam dead.'"

Drexel's top harrier area boy

PHILADELPHIA — Dave Rheinheimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.G. Rheinheimer, 1724 Rose Briar Lane, Stroudsburg, has been named the outstanding runner on the 1968 cross-country team of Drexel Institute of Technology, Philadelphia.

Rheinheimer, a senior physics major, had been a co-captain of this year's team.

In the recent Middle Atlantic Conference championships, Rheinheimer finished third, setting a new Drexel course record with a time of 27 minutes, 59 seconds for the five-mile distance.

Rheinheimer is a 1965 graduate of Stroudsburg High School where he was a standout in the long distance events for the Mountaineer track team.

At Stroudsburg, he was also a member of the Honor Society and a member of the rifle team.

East has Jarvis for Shrine tilt

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI)—

Fullback Charlie Jarvis, Army's record-breaking ground gainer, and teammates Gary Steele, an end, and linebacker Ken Johnson Wednesday accepted invitations to play in post-season all-star football games.

Jarvis, who cracked the three-year career rushing record held by the great Glenn Davis, agreed to play on the East squad in the East-West Shrine game at San Francisco Dec. 28.

Jarvis, a senior from Cornwall Heights, Pa., also broke Davis' single-game rushing record when he carried for 235 yards against Boston College.

Steele, an offensive end who started in every Army game the past three years, will also play in the East-West game. He hails from Levittown, Pa.

Johnson, a linebacker from Newburgh, N.Y., will play in the North-South game at Miami on Christmas Day and the American All-Star game Jan. 4 at Tampa, Fla.

Johnson sustained an ankle injury in last Saturday's win over Navy.

It was thought he might have broken his left ankle but X-rays were negative and the injury was diagnosed as a sprained ankle. He expects to be ready for both post-season games.

UTEP track coach put on probation

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)—

University of Texas at El Paso track coach Wayne Vandenberg was placed on a year's probation Wednesday by the school and the Western Athletic Conference.

In a joint statement by the school's athletic conference and the WAC, Vandenberg was reprimanded for allegedly loaning money to an athlete before he enrolled at the school. A copy of the statement was sent to the NCAA.

Vandenberg was prohibited from recruiting until Aug. 31, 1969.

Last year, seven Negro members of Vandenberg's track team were dismissed because they refused to take part in a dual track meet with WAC member Brigham Young.

The athletes, including Olympic gold medal winner Bob Beamon, said the Mormon religion, which founded BYU, was prejudiced against Negroes.

The statement by the conference said Vandenberg loaned $130 to Larry Page, July 30, 1966.

McCluskey wins Record grid contest

STROUDSBURG — Joe McCluskey Jr., 789 Bryant St., Stroudsburg, was the first place winner in last week's Record Football Contest.

The winners were determined solely on their guesses of the highest number of points scored by any one team.

All three winners missed only the two games which ended in ties. The highest number of points scored was 47.

Second place winner was David Bonser, 457 Hawthorne Terrace, Stroudsburg, with a guess of 53 points, and Delores Posten, Stroudsburg R. D. 1, was third with a guess of 38 points.

Dave Rheinheimer, right, 1724 Rose Briar Lane, Stroudsburg, accepts the trophy awarded to the outstanding runner of the 1968 Drexel cross-country team. Presenting the trophy is Drexel athletic director John Semanik, left, as cross-country coach Murray Miller looks on.

Coaches claim no upsets but records show otherwise

NEW YORK (UPI)—Football coaches insist there's no such thing as an upset but something sure was rocking the rafters through the 1968 college season.

The top shocker came on Oct. 12 when mighty Houston, favored by 21 points, fumbled its way to a 21-17 defeat against Oklahoma State and thereby became the year's strongest beaten favorite on the books prepared by the little old oddsmaker.

On that basis it rates as Upset of the Year but not by much.

Nebraska, favored by 18 points, lost to Kansas State on Nov. 9 by 12-0. In one way, that's a bigger upset. It represents an error of 30 points on the oddsmaker's scale compared to 25 points for Houston-Oklahoma State.

But how about this one? Washington was favored by 10 over Washington State and lost 24-9 for a 34 point differential.

Many coaches, setting up a defense mechanism against the howling of the grandstand wolves, keep repeating that upsets are not for real but only a trick of oddsmakers, writers and broadcasters.

Some, including John McKay of Southern California, Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Bear Bryant of Alabama, concede modern recruiting has spread a wealth of talent across the nation.

"There are 30 or 40 teams in the country that can knock off somebody at any time," McKay noted recently.

What's more, there were 21 games in which teams favored in double figures—10 points or more—went down in what most of us call "upsets" and others call "games of emotion."

In addition to the Houston and Nebraska whoppers, eight

Senior quarterback Greg Cook of Cincinnati, the nation's total offense leader with 3,210 yards, finished second to Hixson in the passing department with 219 completions out of 411 attempts for 3,272 yards and 25 touchdowns.

Gordon Slade of Davidson was third in passing, followed by Marty Domres of Columbia and Steve Ramsey of North Texas State.

Four of the five passing leaders ranked among the best in total offense with Hixson (2,995 yards) finishing second to Cook, Domres (2,404) was third, Ramsey (2,367) fourth and Bill Cappelman of Florida State (2,342) fifth.

Hixson's passing mark and Cook's total offense accomplishments both rank second on the all-time season list behind Bill Anderson, Anderson, while playing for Tulsa University in 1965, completed 296 passes and racked up 3,343 total offense yards.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The question now is, what can Chuck Hixson do for an encore?

Hixson, a sophomore at Southern Methodist University, finished as the top passer in major college football for 1968 according to figures released Wednesday by the National Collegiate Sports Services.

The 6-foot-2 youngster from San Antonio, Tex., completed 265 of 468 pass attempts for 3,103 yards and 21 touchdowns while leading the Mustangs to a 7-3 record and a berth opposite Oklahoma in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Florida was 13 over North Carolina and lost, 11 over Vanderbilt and was tied, Washington, favored by 12, lost to Oregon and later was drubbed by Washington State 24-0 after going in as a 10 point favorite.

These odds seem odd now but on the same weekend Houston lost to Oklahoma State, Purdue was favored by 13 over Ohio State. The Buckeyes, later to become the nation's No. 1 team, beat the spread double by turning in a startling 13-0 shutout.

There was more for Purdue later. Favored by 13 1-2 at Minnesota, the Boilermakers were whacked by 14 on Nov. 9 with a vast television audience in at the kill.

Ambitious Astros trade Aspromonte

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Houston's ambitious Astros, rapidly becoming the busiest little beavers at the baseball meetings here, swung two quick deals within an hour Wednesday and missed a third only by sheer coincidence.

In their first swap, the Astros sent veteran 30-year-old third baseman Bob Aspromonte to Atlanta for utility player Orlando "Marly" Martinez.

Less than 60 minutes later, Houston obtained reliever Dooly Womack from the New York Yankees for outfielder Dick Simpson.

The Astros might have made it three in a row in another deal with the Dodgers except for one thing—the Yankees got there first.

Houston was after Los Angeles lefthanded pitcher Mike Kekich, but discovered the Dodgers had just traded him to the Yankees for outfielder Andy Kosco.

Of the six players involved in the three deals, Aspromonte was the biggest one.

He could wind up as the Braves' regular third baseman next season supplanting Cleto Boyer who was out the last two months of the 1968 season after being hit on his left hand by Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale.

"Aspromonte is our protection," said Atlanta manager Lum Harris. "If Boyer doesn't make it back, he could be our regular third baseman. He can also play left field or first base for us. He played some first base for me when I was in Houston, and he wasn't too bad."

A .294 hitter two years ago when he was sought by several National League clubs, the Brooklyn-born Aspromonte nosedived to .225 with the Astros the past season. He drove in only 46 runs and accounted for one homer.

In return for him, Houston acquired the 27-year-old Martinez, a jack-of-all-trades who batted .230 in 113 games for Atlanta this year while playing shortstop, third base, second base and catcher.

The Yankees' deals with the Dodgers and Astros resulted in them getting a lefthanded pitcher and a righthanded hitting outfielder for a right handed pitcher and a righthanded hitting outfielder.

Yankee manager Ralph Houk said young Kekich would have a chance to win a starting spot with the club. Houk added he had received excellent scouting reports on Kekich despite his 2-10 record and 3.91 earned run average with the Dodgers this year. "He could become our fourth or fifth starter," said Houk. "We'll give him every chance."

Simpson, who has had previous service with the Angels and Reds and was one of the figures in the big deal which sent Frank Robinson to Cincinnati three years ago, divided the past season with Houston and St. Louis, hitting .187 in 85 games.

Kosco was one of the Yankees' bright surprises last season despite his modest .240 average because he drove in 59 runs and hit 15 homers.

Graebner, Ashe doubtful

CHICAGO (UPI)—Both Arthur Ashe and Clark Graebner are doubtful participants for the United States Davis Cup team for its challenge match in Australia late this month, team captain Donald Dell announced Wednesday.

He made the announcement in revealing that neither Ashe nor Graebner would play Wednesday night against pro players in a benefit match for the family of the late Olen Parks.

However, Dell said, "I think we have a great team, and we can win the Davis Cup without Ashe and Graebner."

Dell said both Ashe and Graebner would go to Australia with the cup team, leaving Los Angeles Thursday night. Decision whether either of them can play in the cup finals must be made by Dec. 16 when Dell has to name his four man team.

He said he felt Stan Smith, Bob Lutz and Charles Pasarell, whom he described as "great competitors," could win and that he was going to talk to Cliff Richey about joining the team.

Eccentrics love pets in England

LONDON (AP) — The Earl of Cranbrook exercises bats in his bathroom.

Sir Wilsan Dixie had a beer drinking contest with a pony. Leonard Lowry often sits on the floor of a crowded bus so the family dog can have his seat.

Eccentrics are dotted over the English scene, constantly amazing more mundane people with their weird and wonderful notions. For more than 30 years the London weekly New Statesman has been noting such individual and national peculiarities in a column called "This England."

It's one of the most popular features in British journalism.

The earl and his bats in the bathroom figure in a new collection of gems from the column. Lord Cranbrook was quoted as saying: "I keep the bats for about three months, feed them well and let them go. My recipe for a dinner that bats like is equal parts of egg yolk, cream cheese and banana."

Sir Wilsan's beer drinking contest was with a chestnut pony also named Dixie. The aim was to establish which of them could drink a pint of ale faster. The pony won in 6½ seconds.

Lowry the dog-lover said in a letter to an English newspaper: "When we travel together on a crowded bus it has proved impossible for the dog to stand in the gangway without being brutally kicked. So I always give the dog my seat and at times on long journeys I sit on the floor, ignoring the callous laughter of other passengers."

Fondness for animals is a recurring theme. One lady complained to a policeman: "When my Alsatian dog saw a girl in a topless dress he hung his head in shame."

There was a despair in a letter published by the Communist Daily Worker after it announced that it was changing its name to the Morning Star.

"A year ago," the writer said, "I bought a mynah bird and after months of hard work I am proud to say I got it to shout: 'Read the Daily Worker.' Ye merry gods, now you're changing the paper's name."

The custom of adorning ships with figureheads stems from the superstitions of men sailing into the sea. Many times the vessel had a painted eye or a beast on the prow of the ship. It was believed the eye would enable the ship to find its way and the beast to frighten foes.

Later it became a common practice to use carved wood to decorate ships and this is when figureheads were used. These figureheads were carved by trained sculptors, but they made the ship difficult to maneuver and so were discontinued.

The wood carvers of these figureheads turned their attention to carving signs for shops in the form of animals, boots, mortars and pestles, etc. These signs were usually placed above the shops.

It was in the middle of the 18th century that carvers began to produce human figures in the form of the "cigar store" Indian. From 1850 to the present a wooden Indian identified the tobacco store.

Some of the most famous cigar store Indian carvers were Julius T. Melcher of Detroit and Herman Matzen of Cleveland. Prices of these Indians ranged from $50 to $100 and some even more.

Today of course the carved Indians that have survived through the years are very expensive and are sought by collectors as an example of folk art.

Three welcomed into Pack 104

STROUDSBURG — Three new members were taken into Cub Pack 104 at its meeting in St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg.

The new members are Spencer Cramer II, Timothy Hillman and Mark Dresser.

In other business, Todd Rauchenberger was given his dinner award and Perry Singer his identification card.

In October:

Many see the "return to the mainland theme" as the ideological underpinning of the Kuomintang government on Formosa.

"The Nationalists are trapped by the political realities," one observer said. "There are two million people who call themselves mainlanders here and are proud of it, and 12 million Formosans, which means that 84 per cent of the population don't have the same interest in going back."

If the Nationalists eventually renounce the great dream, the generally politically quiescent Formosans might ask for a greater voice in the government. Right now Formosa is portrayed as merely a province of China, the base for the Nationalists' return.

And should an attempt be made to cut down the 600,000-man bureaucracy, as many American advisers have suggested over the years, then the Formosans might take it as an admission that the Nationalists are not going back.

Serious opposition to the regime is no longer visible. The last obvious crisis came in 1955 when a group of senior army officers surrounded the Gimo and demanded a lessening of political interference in the armed forces. The perpetrator of this suggestion, Chief of Staff Sun Li-jen, still is under house arrest.

Completely loyal political officers watch the army closely, sitting beside unit commanders, watching troop movements. Officers are moved around frequently and not permitted to develop overly large circles of close friends. Chinese embassies around the world have ambassadors who created the acceptable limits of success within the military.

Even so, winds of change are slow reaching Formosa. In the rural areas the Kuomintang never loses an election, but in the cities levers of power are becoming increasingly difficult to use. The problem was solved in this capital city when a non-party Formosan won two consecutive elections. Taipei was declared a special municipality where future mayors will be appointed.

Some observers see the party switching from its liberal orientation developed under the late Vice President Chen Cheng, toward a tighter controlled society under Chiang-kuo. Others see the economic situation building up tremendous momentum, with $850 million in exports this year.

While the Kuomintang has not interfered in Formosa business, and the country has a continued interest in political stability because of the burgeoning economy, the time may come when the Formosans want a much larger voice. Many express the hope that Chiang Ching-kuo will be listening.

Yet Chiang told his followers

Return a 'dream' to Chiang's son

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek's elder son, the powerful Defense Minister Chiang Ching-kuo, glanced at the large photograph of the Great Wall of China above his seat and said softly: "Viewed strictly from the mathematical point of view, comparing the population, the terrain, the size of the military forces, then it is a dream."

He was speaking of his 81-year-old father's oft-stated desire to return to China's mainland as a conqueror.

Ching-kuo quickly qualified his remark, possibly lest it be construed as sacrilege by the old-guard Kuomintang politicians who surround his father.

"Only facts in the future can really tell if it is a dream," the 58-year-old defense minister added. "We are well aware of our own weaknesses and strengths. This view is my own personal view."

One of the major facts in the future will be Ching-kuo himself, a secretive army officer who has skillfully built a power base on Formosa that has made him heir-apparent to his father, if not in title then in fact.

His suggestion that his father's cause might be sterile has been shared by much of the world ever since 1949 when the Nationalists were forced off China's mainland. The view has been reinforced by the seeming negative reaction of dissidents on the mainland to Formosan offers of help. Factional fighting has taken place on the mainland within 15 miles of the Nationalist strongholds of Quemoy and Matsu, but there has been no call for help.

"The Nationalists are no longer in the mainstream of China," one American observer commented. "It is not a hatred of the generalissimo and his people, it is an indifference."

Many observers on Formosa, both foreign and Chinese, believe that even if the call came and China cracked wide open in revolt against the Communist party, there is little that the Gimo—as Chiang is known—could do about capitalizing on it.

His navy is tiny, his air force out of date, he would need a lot of American help. There is real doubt that the Formosan people, basking in the second highest standard of living in Asia, after Japan, protected by the American nuclear shield, and blessed with a beautiful island home, would show eagerness to fulfill Chiang's dreams by fighting on the vast mainland 100 miles across the sea.

No. nine mine — way of life, death

NUMBER NINE, W.Va. (AP)

— This place doesn't exist on any map except a geologist's, but it's real. People live at Number Nine, work at Number Nine and die at Number Nine.

Recently a fearsome rumbling shook the lumpy landscape of northern West Virginia and 78 men were entombed in Number Nine.

News reports placed that coal mine explosion at Farmington or Mannington because these towns were on the map. But it happened at Number Nine—the mine and the community. The two are inseparable.

From the time a coal miner buys his son's diapers from the company store, to the retirement years when he buys his chewing tobacco there, life in a community like Number Nine is a constant reminder that coal is what it's all about.

The miner's wife, shopping for groceries, getting gasoline in her car or selecting a new television set, can see the brick building where her husband does his work clothes before going deep into the earth.

Since 1906, more than 90,000 men have lost their lives in the coal mines. Yet in places like Number Nine there are teen-agers looking forward to the day when they can wear the bluegray coveralls and hard hat of the miner.

When times are good there is a full week's work at $33 a day for a miner, plus time and a half for overtime on Saturday, good money.

"Why should I relocate when I've got a job right here," said a blond 25-year-old miner. "My parents live here. My wife's parents live here."

But it isn't just the money that keeps people in the coal mining country.

It's walking out of your house and leaving the door unlocked without worrying about burglars. It's keeping a coon dog, or a pack of 'em, in your backyard. It's friendly gatherings at the company store and the neighborliness of neighbors who don't live so close that they're on top of you all the time. It's these things and more.

Nobody talks much of the danger. Even after an accident like the one at Number Nine, few consider moving away.

The Consolidation Coal Co.'s Number Nine mine, one of the best producers in the state, has been worked since 1950.

It has had one previous major explosion—in 1954 when 16 men were trapped underground.

At that time, the former owners waited three days then sealed the entrances to shut off the oxygen that fed the raging fires within.

Matt Menas, whose father was killed in the '54 accident, was one of the 21 who made it safely from the mine after the explosion Nov. 20.

Andy Satorito, 19, whose father works in another mine and who has relatives trapped in Number Nine, says the explosion hasn't changed his mind about going to work there.

"I'm not afraid to work in those mines," he said. "I should be, I guess, but I've looked forward to it all my life."

"It's exciting. I go down there and get excited all over."

Some people say coal miners are fatalists and seekers of danger, much as a parachutist or submariner. But people at Number Nine don't say that out loud. Their stock reply to questions about fear is that you can get hit by a car in the quietest of neighborhoods.

Women whose husbands have spent a quarter century or more in the mines are outwardly passive about their husbands' occupations. But some of the younger ones—daughters of coal miners—don't seem that way.

"When I was dating," said Mrs. Bob Friend, "if a boy told me that he worked in the mines I'd quit him right there. I just wouldn't go with a coal miner."

Daley endorses riot report, but...

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special federal report says police deliberately attacked and beat dozens of newsmen covering the bloody street clashes which occurred during the Democratic National Convention in Chicago last August.

Newsmen, singled out by cursing policemen, were pummeled with night sticks repeatedly without reason, says a staff report released Sunday by the President's commission on violence.

But, at the same time, it finds that the antiwar protesters made skillful use of news coverage, particularly television, to dramatize their dissent. The investigators conclude that police belief that news coverage was biased against them contributed to the violence against media personnel.

What the whole world was watching, after all, was not a confrontation but the picture of a confrontation, to some extent directed by a generation that had grown up with television and learned to use it," the report says.

In Chicago, Mayor Richard J. Daley issued a statement endorsing the report.

Daley said at a news conference that he had "some reservations" concerning the treatment of some sections but overall it is an excellent study.

"I urge the widest possible distribution of the report," Daley said.

"My only basic criticism is the summary, which if used alone, would mislead the public and be a disservice to those who prepared the report," he said.

The mayor refused to answer questions on his statement.

The findings are in a special task force study of the Chicago rioting made for the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence appointed by President Johnson after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. The commission has neither approved nor disapproved the staff conclusions.

Throughout the five nights of stormy street fighting, "the preponderance of violence" came from the police, not the demonstrators, the report concludes.

Much of the police violence directed against newsmen "was plainly deliberate," the report says.

The investigators report an overall total of 63 newsmen were physically attacked by police during the peace protests.

The task force devotes a special section of the report to police violence against the news media and includes blow-by-blow accounts of cases involving 49 newsmen who were "hit, maced, or arrested, apparently without reason, by police."

Other cases, deleted from the report, are "under active consideration" by the Justice Department, the task force says.

The study said the police blamed newsmen for refusing to obey orders, for blinding them with television lights which made them targets for stoning by protesters and for attracting demonstrators by their presence.

"News reports of events did seem to the police to be anti-Chicago and anti-police," the report says.

"But was the response appropriate to the provocation?" The report, without answering the question specifically, leaves little doubt that the investigators feel it was not.

The vignettes of violence as given in the report include:

—Claude Lewis, a political reporter for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, stopped to make notes when he saw police beating a girl. "The policemen grabbed the notebook, tossed it into the gutter, and clubbed Lewis four or five times on the head, knocking him to the ground. Lewis' blood covered his head and clothing." He was hospitalized a day and a half.

—NBC television cameraman James Stricklin started to film a police beating of CBS cameraman Delos Hall. A policeman hit Stricklin on the mouth with a nightstick. Others chased him. Stricklin said, "The next thing I know I was being hit on the head, and I think on the back, and I was just forced down on the ground." He spent two days in a hospital.

—Winston S. Churchill II, heir to an immortal British name, was covering a clash in the downtown hotel area for the London Evening News when police knocked him to the ground. When he got up, he and another newsmen were momentarily pinned against the wall by a policeman rushing them on a motorcycle.

The report estimates the beating victims represented roughly one out of every five newsmen assigned to covering the street violence. In most instances, it says, those beaten carried visible credentials identifying them as newsmen.

The report, in noting the news coverage helped strengthen the effect of the demonstrations, says "There is no question that the protesters in Chicago, as elsewhere, 'played to the cameras' or that they often did it very effectively."

The task force quoted Yippie protest leader Abbie Hoffman: "I fight through the jungle of TV."

The task force says police temper were irritated by the feeling that news coverage was biased against them, their mayor and their city. Policemen accused reporters of faking stories, and the report cites two accounts by federal attorneys who witnessed protesters feigning injuries for television cameras.

However, the task force, indirectly, gives a vote of confidence to the accuracy and validity of the television coverage by relying strongly on its films to provide a record of the most serious violence that erupted in the downtown area the night the convention chose Hubert H. Humphrey as its nominee.

The report touches on the press relations on the convention floor itself by citing the striking of two CBS newsmen by guards and stressing the curtailment of press credentials by Democratic officials.

The task force said the stringent limits on floor credentials caused an initial irritation among newsmen and a hostility toward the Chicago convention that may have spilled over into relations with police.

Meanwhile, police were unhappy with press coverage and, "in this emotional climate, with police tempers already shortened by conflicts with demonstrators, it was perhaps inevitable that incidents of police press violence would occur," the report concludes.

Highlights of report on violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Highlights of special report on the street rioting during the Democratic National Convention in Chicago:

Violence — "A police riot" occurred in clearing demonstrators from a lakeside park at the start of the convention. And "the preponderance of violence" came from the police in the bloodiest battle the night of the nomination, the report says.

Press — Much of the police violence against newsmen "was plainly deliberate," and traceable in part to the officers' belief that news coverage was biased against them.

Provocation — The antiwar demonstrators made the police targets of obscenity, sticks, stones, sharp weapons and sacks of human waste. "The response was unrestrained and indiscriminate police violence," the report says.

Injuries — 192 police, including 49 who were hospitalized; 43 newsmen attacked by police; 101 demonstrators hospitalized, and an estimated 1,025 treated by the protesters' own medical teams.

Arrests — 668 persons from 36 states, the District of Columbia and five foreign countries.

Present — An estimated 10,000 demonstrators, a total of 12,000 police, another 12,000 National Guardsmen and Army troops, more than 300 news personnel covering the street violence, a lesser number of delegates and uncounted thousands of curious bystanders.

Mountains of Heaven go modern

ALMA ATA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — An almond-eyed Kazakh woman, descendant of an ancient central Asian people, lifts a traditional ukulele-type instrument called a duma—and plucks at a Mozart rondo.

Later in the same concert, a Kazakh man plays a Bach fugue on a $110,000 organ imported from East Germany to this city in the foothills of the Tien Shan — Mountains of Heaven.

The sound of Western music in this distant Eastern city, 175 miles from the Chinese border, is a symbol of the changes which have swept across the Soviet area called Kazakhstan.

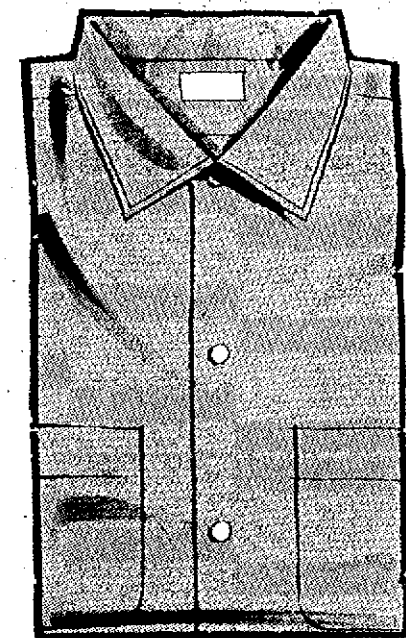

Stretching some 1,800 miles from the Volga to China, this mineral-rich land peopled by once-warlike Kazakh Mongols was first colonized by the tsars. Soviet rulers have made it a growing site of steel mills, wheat fields, atom bomb tests and space launches.

To develop this picturesque land of desert and mountain, and to maintain an outpost in the face of Chinese territorial claims, Moscow has encouraged a big influx of settlers from the Russian Federation, the Ukraine and other Soviet areas.

Although some Kazakhs have risen to governmental positions, here as elsewhere in the Soviet Union real power is held by the Communist party, where Russians and other non-Kazakhs form a majority.

Everybody's Business

Inter-municipal project opens new industrial area

EPHRATA — A seven million dollar inter-municipal project was begun last February to link the sanitary sewer systems of Ephrata, Denver, and Akron Boroughs, and East Cocalico Township in northern Lancaster County.

The project will open new areas for industrial, commercial and housing developments, help curb water pollution and have an important bearing on the health and welfare of area residents.

Commenting on the project, Ephrata Borough manager Carl W. Fuehrer said, "This is an outstanding example of what can be accomplished by inter-municipal cooperation without regard to boundary lines. It's a new high in community effort."

Completion of the project is scheduled for early 1969.

In time, the system is expected to be extended to other communities in the area. Funds are being provided locally and through federal government grants.

Credit network
NEW YORK — ITT Aetna Corp., utilizing one of the customers credit industry's first operational computer networks, initiated "service-in-seCONDS" for personal loan customers in 24 states.

David R. Corwin, president of this subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, said implementation of the pioneering network, during Aetna's 50th anniversary year, climaxed two years of effort.

ITT Data Services, an ITT division headquartered in Paramus, N.J., has assumed operational management of the action network and the St. Louis computer center which houses two IBM System 360 Model 40 computer systems. One system will handle action; the other will provide management information on Aetna field offices' activities. ITT Data Services also operates a nationwide network of data processing and time-sharing service centers.

Corwin said action will improve customer service in three ways; by providing swifter processing of initial loan applications; by providing improved access to detailed account information; and by permitting 80 per cent faster handling of across-the-counter payments.

New district manager

NEW YORK — David C. Elliott has been appointed manager of Ford Motor Co. U.S. Tractor and Implement Operations' Northeastern District in Latham, N.Y. Formerly assistant Central District manager, headquartered in Grandview, Mo., Elliott succeeds Joseph B. Hass, who was named South Central district manager, located in Memphis, Tenn.

The Northeastern district coordinates the sales and service activities of Ford Tractor dealerships in New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey and nearly half of Pennsylvania.

Prior to joining Tractor and Implement Operations in 1962 as advertising and sales promotion manager, Elliott spent 27 years with International Harvester Co., holding various positions including district sales manager.

Apollo 8 astronauts 'injected'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 8 astronauts received injections and started a program of "limited exposure" this week in a plan space doctors hope will keep them free of colds or Hong Kong flu during their Christmas time flight around the moon.

The astronauts, Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders, were given inoculations this week against the Asian 2, or Hong Kong, influenza virus.

Some 1,200 key space personnel at Cape Kennedy also received the shots, and about a fourth that number are expected to get them at the Manned Spacecraft Center this week.

The back-up and support crews for Apollo 8, scheduled for launch Dec. 21, also received the shots, as did the prime, back-up and support crews of Apollo 9, scheduled for launch in February.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration doctor said efforts are being made for "limited exposure" of the astronauts to cold germs before the flight. He said the program included an educational campaign to encourage space workers with colds to stay away from the astronauts.

Colds plagued the Apollo 7 astronauts for most of their 10-day flight last October. When colds clogged their ear canals it was feared for a time that the Apollo 7 crew would suffer pain during the rapid pressure change of their return to earth.

NASA doctors said they believed the colds were contracted on earth and developed once Apollo 7 was in space. The experience caused a re-evaluation of the Apollo medical kit and triggered plans for the program of limited exposure now used for the Apollo 8 crew.

The medical supplies on Apollo 8 will include more than double the number of decongestant pills that was on Apollo 7. Astronauts on the Apollo 8 flight had to closely ration the decongestants available to them.

The Apollo 8 medical kit will also include a nasal spray bottle for each of the crewmen. Doctors said the spray should keep their ear canals clear.

Apollo 8 is scheduled for launch Dec. 21.

Civil action resumed in court

MILFORD — The civil action involving condemnation proceedings for Interstate Rt. 84 between Cyrus Lauer, Dingman Twp., and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania resumed in Pike County Tuesday.

Lauer is represented by attorneys John Finan and Sanford Beecher, both of Milford. The Commonwealth is represented by an assistant attorney general, Jack Lindshaw, and Harold Thomson Jr. of Pottsville.

During the day, the plaintiff's attorneys called three witnesses, Leo Achteman, a professional engineer of East Stroudsburg, James Marshall, a real estate broker of Fairview Lake, and H. Dean McCombs, Matamoras, to the stand.

President Judge Arlington W. Williams presided with associate Judge Randolph D. Gregory also on the bench.

Black sets precedent on TV show

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black, touching on the violence splattered demonstrations during the Democratic National Convention, says he knows of nothing that "gives people the right to tramp up and down the streets by the thousands."

In a precedent-shattering television interview, Black said Tuesday night the freedom of speech guarantee does not shield conduct that is unlawful.

The nation's senior justice avoided judgment on the actual clashes that took place in Chicago, but said, as a matter of principle, the right to assembly does not extend to another man's property, not even government property.

Protestors, Black said, have only "a right to talk where they have a right to be under valid laws."

The 82-year-old Black, member of the nation's highest court for more than three decades, spoke in an hour-long interview over the CBS television network.

In the interview, splintering the traditional silence of the black-robed court, Black spoke freely on his opinions, his decisions and his court philosophy.

In the wide-ranging interview, Black said: "Perhaps the phrase saying schools should be desegregated, 'with all deliberate speed' should not have been written into the court's historic 1954 classroom ruling because he said that wording has been used to delay integration."

Intended gift

OSLO (AP) — The government has asked the National Assembly to grant $107,000 to purchase and transport 11 crystal chandeliers as Norway's gift to the projected John F. Kennedy center of dramatic art in Washington, D.C. The chandeliers will be made in Norwegian glassworks.

Your Horoscope By Francis Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Make a quick check before you begin day's program in order to prevent avoidable errors, misunderstandings. And, throughout the day, emphasize your steadfastness, imagination and charm.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — A splendid day for improving methods and for experimenting generally. With your innate enthusiasm, you can give a lift to practically any project.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Mixed planetary influences. Responsibilities may seem to pile up — but so will advantages. Face all with a down-to-earth attitude, then handle in your usual competent manner. Good management will eventually bring gains.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Be alert now. A thoughtless move could have more repercussions than you could possibly imagine. A favorable time for updating methods, old devices.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — You should be able to go along without difficulty now. Be guided by your deeper feelings as they are likely to open up fine new vistas to you very shortly.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — What you do well now will register for quite a while, but DO avoid procrastination and duplication of effort or you could delay future gains. Concentrate on purposeful aims.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Admonitions now: Avoid mismanagement, misdirection of good effort, inaccuracy and guesswork. Use your keen perception and be realistic under all circumstances.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Emphasize tolerance now, but do not waste sympathy on the undeserving. A day for making quiet, but steady advancement.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Fine planetary influences indicate golden opportunities to get ahead. Here's a chance to exercise your talent for good management, your spirit of enterprise.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Don't block opposition that could be eventually converted into support. Work diplomatically to bring it around. Some barriers aren't as impregnable as they seem.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — You cannot do better than your best, so go along with all activities as though you expected the tops in benefits, and you will come close.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Insure results by capitalizing upon your fine talents, and keep your pace constant, but not hectic. You can accomplish a great deal — even in "little" ways.

YOU BORN TODAY are strong-minded, equal to any task life sets you, and able to call upon common sense and remarkably good judgment to get the difficult achieved with little effort. The Sagittarian enjoys sports, contests, travel and the companionship of clever, interesting persons. Never a pessimist, you can, however, be disappointed at seeming lack of appreciation. Try to curb this tendency toward hypersensitivity. Birthdate of: Martin Van Buren, 8th Pres., U.S.A.; Walt Disney, film writer, producer.

TREASURE HUNTING WITH ELLEN

... for the exciting, unique gift, shop here every Thursday with Ellen Leeds ...
Phone 421-7349

WARM GREETINGS

Be smart and snappy as the weather in one of the greatest nippy weather ideas around! Zacher's has a four piece pant suit in chinchilla cloth, fully lined and fresh as paint! Poncho addicts will find warm wool plaids which reverse to water-repellant poplin. Or see the loden coats by Europe Craft — all wool, water repellent and almost as handsome inside as out with ribbon trimmed, quilted linings. Stop in at 75 Crystal Street, East Stroudsburg, and let the friendly folks at Zacher's show you these and other warm ideas for keeping you comfortable and chic as you scurry on your Holiday shopping rounds.

TRIP GIFT

Whether your traveling friends are off around the world or overnight to the city, you'll find many ideas for gifts in a special section at Holiday Gift Center, 8th and Main. There are travel accessories such as: zippered jewel boxes in-out velvet or silk, hosiery cases, travel slippers, overnight case with its own umbrella, shoe bags, folding tote bags and a "grab bag" that organizes the purse or is one. There are some lovely small evening bags in peau de soie, velvet, silver or gold lame and satin. Some of these are embroidered or beaded with matching gloves. There are "fur" hats and gloves, lace mantillas and dear little hemp slippers handmade in the Philippines.

BE INGENIOUS

Use a horse blanket for a throw rug or a car robe? Why not! They have some handsome ones at the Beaver Valley Saddle Shop, and we don't all have horses. Heavy, rough wool in primitive patterns of the Navaho Indians would make a dandy small rug and there are finer wools in geometric patterns that would make a car seat more comfortable in chilly weather. They come 30 X 60 inches. Alice and Bill Arnold have a new supply of Western shirts in paisley, checks and solid colors, some in permanent press, and in lots of sizes. If you tried before and they were out of your size, now's the time! They also have in new boots in rough out leather. Directions: 209 South to Weaver's Store, turn at first right and first left. Or phone 421-8837. They are open 6 to 10 PM and Saturdays.

SILVER AND GLASS

Need a present for someone who "has everything"? Here's a nifty suggestion — a set of six sterling silver plates with raised fruit pattern. These handsome plates may be seen at Lisl's Antiques, 3 miles north of Stbg. on Rte 191. Or how about a set of six flower panel water goblets, circa 1890? This pattern is quite rare and it's most unusual to see a set of six intact. You will find several roomfuls of 19th Century American pattern glass at Mrs. Drake's interesting place. She has trays, bowls, pitchers, cruets, celerys, spooners and compotes spilling out of numerous china closets, crowding mantels, tables and window ledges. If you like treasure hunting, this is a fascinating place to start. There are so many exciting things to see that you may have trouble returning to the everyday world!

QUASAR COLOR

If you haven't seen Motorola Quasar, you haven't seen color TV at its finest. Sliding controls make color hue and intensity selection a breeze, there is Visi-Trak tuning and APC picture lock so your set is always fine tuned even when you change channels! You get instant sound and instant picture. A 2 year registered guarantee comes with the set, but if something should go wrong, Motorola has a solution. The handsome control panel is really a door to a drawer, that slides out bringing "the works" with it. You simply snap out one of 10 mini-circuit panels and snap in a new one. TV repair so simple that a bright child can do it! But seeing is believing, why not ride out to Quasar Country and let Kenny Stanner show you this space age miracle in handsome cabinet styles of fine woods. Take Business Rte 209 South until you see Kenny's sign just this side of Snyder'sville.

CANNED DELICACIES

Did you know that you can buy the following canned delicacies in Stroudsburg? Lingonberries, kumquats, snow peas, vine leaves, celery knobs, quail eggs, mangoes in syrup, hearts of palm, guava shells, coconut juice, ginger beer, Swedish meatballs, pickled walnuts, branded pears, gooseberries, marrows, stuffed oranges, orange flower water and Rose's Lime? Well, they even have canned apple pie at Nebel's Market, 726 Main Street. And how about these exotic items: rattlesnake meat, fried grasshoppers and canned octopus!

CONSPIRACY, ANYONE?

If you are considering gifting someone with a musical instrument, how do you let him choose and still retain the element of surprise? Jay Cameron, at Mainline Music has a plan, so stop in and discuss the problem with him. He is willing to cooperate with you in letting the recipient make his own selection and still keep your secret. Chances are that a selection can be made from the fantastic assortment of instruments in the shop, but Jay's weekly trip to New York assures you of having just the right gift. Or you can just give a Gift Certificate from Mainline, 525 Main Street, and miss all the fun of the skulduggery.

MINI-REFRIGERATOR

Why not give Dad his own refrigerator for Christmas? Weibill makes a 2.5 cubic foot beauty in coppertone with walnut grain formica door and interesting statistics: weight - 68lbs. Measurements: 22 1/2" - 19 1/2" - 21 1/2". It's foam insulated and has a tall bottle section, hatch! We can think of many places to put this little beauty... like Dad's office or den, the recreation room or even the bedroom (it's small enough to fit in a closet if necessary). It would also make a terrific gift for the dorm, small apartment or trailer. If you have slightly more room, there's a 6.4 cubic foot model, equally handsome. For all-white enthusiasts there are two models, 2.5 and 4.6 cubic feet. The mini-refrigerator can be purchased at Wyckoff's, Major Appliances, Main Floor.

SUGER PLUMS

To dance all over your tree and all through the house. These delightful Christmas decorations came straight from fairyland! Plants and Design Center has gingerbread houses, trains, baskets, fruits, bon-bons and many other items; to make your own or ready-made. They look so real that one is tempted to take a bite. Fortunately the makers knew this and made them of non-toxic materials. Garland, wreaths, door swags all have an exceptionally festive air when made with these new "sugar coated" confections. When you drive over to Plants and Design, Lenox Avenue, East Stroudsburg (you turn off North Courtland at Ehrlich's Market) be sure to see the special designs which Herman Lubber has created with these marvelous decorations. Don't rush... you'll really enjoy browsing in the Christmas Shop!

LITTLE BIG GIRLS

will love a special section at Frances Burrows where you can find high fashion in sizes 8 to 11. Affricandos of such designer houses as Crazy Horse, Junior Sophisticates, Youth Guild and Charlie's Girls will find their favorites well represented. We especially liked a bonded white wool bathrobe dress piped in navy and a ribbed wool in palest gray with low neck and embossed silver buttons. Another charmer was in shades of blue with dotted top and bird-track skirt trimmed in looped braid. Wool jumpers in several smart styles. For the swingers, an out of sight silk jersey print with low, gathered waist in black, orange, gold and green print that seemed to be dancing right on the rack!

EAGLES

Brass and wrought iron eagle door knockers, candle sconce, coat and picture hooks and wall decorations can be found at The Heritage Shop, 2400 North Fifth Street. This pleasant shop (with lots of parking space!) is a good place to look for decorative gifts. Whether you are searching for a brass patio bell, a coffee mill, spoon rack or lazy susan, you will find something to please. We liked a tile cheese board with clear keeper cover and an antiqued bronze student lamp with amber shades. Owner Donald Tinney has many decorator lamps in stock and also a nice selection of battery and 8-day clocks. Also bowl and pitcher sets, cork faced trivets, condiment caddies, spice racks... lots of Early Americana.

Farms no blue-chip investment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Why should city people invest money in farm land if it won't earn them more than common stocks or government bonds?

Land buying by nonfarmers seems to be increasing, Agriculture Department figures indicate, but the statistics show farm land on the average is not the blue-chip investment that some believe.

Department real estate analysts say that since 1950 farm land—including buildings—has produced an average total return of 8.8 per cent a year. This includes a yearly return from the land's production of 3.5 per cent, and a growth in value equivalent to a compound annual rate of 5.3 per cent.

The kicker is that to reap the full growth, land bought in 1950 must be sold now. Otherwise, the investor will have only the 3.5 per cent annual income from production.

But the appreciation in the market value of farm land is a strong motivation for city-dwelling investors, despite a larger growth for common stocks during the same 18 years.

For example, the analysts say, since 1950 common stocks have averaged an annual dividend yield of 3.5 per cent, the same as for farm land's return from production. But common stocks have increased in value at the rate of 10.3 per cent a year, nearly double the rate for land.

As in the case of land, stocks would have to be sold for the investor to get the entire 13.8 per cent gain.

Land-buying patterns show that about two-thirds of the land sales and transfers each year are made by farmers to other farmers. But in recent years buying by nonfarmers has increased slightly, from about 31 per cent of the transactions in 1963 to around 34 per cent last year.

Farm land has grown in value consistently in the last couple of decades. In 1950 the market value average was $64.95 an acre or a total for all the farm land and buildings in the nation of $75.2 billion. Last week, department analysts said the average value was $178 an acre, or a total of $193.7 billion.

Location of land—such as near an expanding urban area—and its proximity to public services, recreation areas and cultural centers are other factors adding to or subtracting from values.

As the number of operators declines and the size of farms increases, the remaining farmers are forced to expand holdings to turn out more goods so they can stay in business.

More than half the land transactions each year involve farmers who want to enlarge their holdings, department records show.

But the influx of nonfarm investment also plays an important role. An agriculture department official said one reason land might be favored over the stock market is the amount of money investors are required to put up for each.

Draft constitution

RANGOON (AP) — Burma's ruling revolutionary Council chairman, Gen. Ne Win who seized power and suspended the constitution six years ago, announced plans to present within six months a new draft constitution to be devised in consultation with former political party leaders. Among the consultants, an official statement said, is ex-Premier U Nu, former prisoner of the Ne Win regime. Political parties are still banned, Ne Win emphasized.

Pub subs for hearth in England

LONDON (AP) — As the gray winter days settle over Britain and the nights grow longer, Londoners no longer retreat to those bright, blazing coal fires of their ancestors.

London now is a smokeless zone. The thick, choking fogs are gone and after a century you can breathe easily again. Long-unseen birds have returned to Hyde and St. James' but the cherry red glow has gone from the Londoner's home, his pub and his club.

Now there is for Londoners the dull evening prospect of feet, divested of rain-soaked shoes, propped up before a ghastly gas fire, a soulless central heating radiator or, at the best, a sorrowful electric heater into which some London Electricity Board designer has built a revolving flicker that supposedly simulates the flames of old.

For the Britisher deprived of the ancient pleasures of the fireplace there is an alternative: to venture out to the public house around the corner — the Bull's Head, the Mitre Tavern, the King's Arms, the Punch or the Hoop and Grapes.

There at least, even without the traditional fire, he will be warm because England's pubs now are more crowded than ever. It is not that Britons are drinking, per capita, so much more frothy bittler, warm pale ale or Scotch whisky — but because there are 30,000 fewer pubs than before the war.

Only 75,000 pubs now are available for 55 million Britons — one for every 733 persons — and, like other male bastions, most have been invaded by women.

Changing times have not spoiled the atmosphere of the vast majority of British "local," each pub has its individuality. There are the classic, oak-beamed, dart-playing pubs. There are the boisterous common's Prospect of Whitby. There are boating pubs like the City Barge, pubs for airline pilots, painters' pubs, writers' pubs, dockers' pubs, lawyers' pubs, theatrical pubs, Victorian pubs likely the gaudy Salisbury in St. Martin's Lane.

But with Britain's population getting younger, a large number of pubs are changing too — much to the horror of those Englishmen who look back nostalgically.

The sedate White Hart in Chelsea, where only last summer you could sit quietly and watch the swinging generation go by, has transformed itself into a shiny stainless steel French-style "drugstore" with pop art fixtures and Carnaby Street clientele.

"It is shocking," commented one middle-aged man who found himself surrounded by the new generation. "They say it has been a great success—but it is no place for a man who just wants a quiet drink and a bit of a chin-wag."

Snowy Montreal

MONTREAL (AP) — Montrealers had their snowiest November since 1901, the McGill University observatory reported. The month's total was 27.2 inches, two inches less than in 1901. The all-time record is 36.1 set in 1886.

Judge Bernard Brominski, left, presents certificate of honor to Sen. T. Newell Wood as Atty. J. Earl Langan looks on.

Sen. Wood receives certificate of honor for legislative work

PITTSBURGH — Sen. T. Newell Wood received a certificate of honor in public recognition of his services in the legislature, at a recent testimonial dinner tendered by Pittston Lodge of Elks with more than 350 in attendance.

Judge Bernard Brominski, president judge of Luzerne County Courts, made the presentation.

Sen. Wood and two other legislators were honored for their efforts in recent legislation.

Judge Brominski cited the honored guests for courage and determination in supporting good legislation.

In the role of principal speaker, Attorney J. Earl Langan lauded the legislators for their "industrious and humane services to the people back home. Langan is president of the board of governors.

Acknowledging the tributes, Sen. Wood declared he was "humbly grateful for the high honor" and pledged his continued efforts to represent all of the people.

Intrepid reporter no threat as 'booster'

POTTSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — It was to be a one-thief affair—get caught shoplifting, and write a story about it.

My first nervous, bungling attempt netted a $70 adding machine. In the second, I escaped with a $33 candelabra. In my third try, I walked away with a $80 camera.

Growing bolder I "lifted" a large snow shovel from a super market and exchanged courteous smiles with a clerk on my way out.

And so it went until $255 worth of stolen merchandise accumulated in the Pottstown Mercury newsroom.

For more than two hours I defied television cameras, mirrors, guards and trained employees as I shoplifted in seven different department stores before getting caught.

When that moment came, I almost welcomed it. Shoplifting was easy. It was not even a challenge. All I had to do was walk into a store, check the immediate area for clerks, place the merchandise under my coat and walk out.

In order to be caught, I placed a large, awkward box, containing a folding card table under my arm and attempted to walk out the front door of a department store.

A clerk in back called out, "You want me to help you with that sir?" I thought perhaps the clerk wanted to carry the box to the car for me. Overconfidence kills!

It is possible that he intended to do just that until he noticed that there was no purchase tag on the box.

The store manager was understanding only after I showed him my press card. He allowed me to leave, but without the merchandise.

The results of the story were twofold. For myself, I gained an insight into the paranoid world of the shoplifter.

Local merchants, on the other hand have consequently doubled their efforts to thwart shoplifters by adding more sales people and plain clothes detectives.

If all goes as expected, shoplifters will find Pottstown's merchants a lot tougher in the future.

Businessmen's meet scheduled

STROUDSBURG — Christian Businessmen's Committee will meet Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the Motel Inn Towne and will have Alfred Jackson, a Williamsport attorney, as the guest speaker.

Also on hand at the meeting will be Robert Rowan, a pilot for the Moffit family, owners of Moffit Coal Co., who was beaten, shot and left as dead in the woods of Luzerne County.

Reservations should be by today by calling Oliver Cramer.

Roles switch in Pearl flick

WASHINGTON (AP) — Who'd think the U.S. Navy would permit one of its aircraft carriers to play the commercial movie role of a Japanese carrier attacking Pearl Harbor?

And who'd think U.S. Navy pilots would be permitted to fly planes simulating Japanese bombers which dealt the most devastating blow ever inflicted on American naval power?

It's due to happen off the California coast this week, almost exactly 27 years after the surprise Japanese attack that propelled the United States into World War II.

Taking part in the sequence will be the 33,000-ton Yorktown, a carrier which saw actual battle against Japan late in World War II.

Later, the Yorktown will ferry to Hawaii some 30 propeller-driven planes owned or leased by 20th Century-Fox, the filmmaker, and adapted to look like Japanese warplanes.

The Pentagon said the Yorktown was due to sail to Hawaii empty and that 20th Century will pay standard military sea transport service rates for hauling its planes.

The Navy and its parent, the Defense Department, both have agreed to cooperate with 20th Century-Fox, on a film called "Tora! Tora! Tora!" The name derives from the code signal radioed back to tell Japanese commanders the attack was a total surprise.

The Navy appears to be eager to help make the film because, in its view, the picture will advance public awareness of carrier airpower—in which the U.S. Navy has a big stake.

The Defense Department okayed cooperation with 20th Century-Fox on condition it not cost the United States any money, and that it not interfere with normal fleet and military operations.

There is no legal bar to the government sharing in any profits from commercial movies, but a Pentagon spokesman said it is not Defense Department policy to try to make money on such ventures.

N.Y. burdened, honored with U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The evil odor of the slaughter houses no longer hovers over Turtle Bay. Long ago men razed these unsightly abattoirs and in their place built what has been called a workshop for peace.

The thin blue-gray shaft of marble and glass thrusts upward as a landmark on the New York skyline.

The fluttering flags of 126 nations proclaim that this is the home of the United Nations. It has become a mecca for kings, presidents and prime ministers and for sightseers, pickets and protesters.

To the U.S. government and the City of New York has fallen the mammoth job of helping some 20,000 U.N. people handle the everyday problems of living in a strange city.

They are honored with the title of host country and host city, but often are sorely tried by the responsibilities of trying to keep these thousands reasonably happy and help them adjust to unfamiliar ways.

In the words of one diplomat, playing host to the United Nations is like being an "international den mother."

It was not by accident that the world organization chose for its permanent headquarters this particular spot, in Manhattan island, beside the East River. It was an important political issue, bitterly contested for many months before a final decision was reached on Dec. 14, 1946.

Trygve Lie once remarked that the decision to establish permanent headquarters in New York was dictated by the "strategy of peace." What he meant was that the world must see to it that the United States was encouraged in every possible way to participate fully in the United Nations and that locating the headquarters in the United States was the best way to win continued support of the American people.

Even those who originally opposed a U.S. site now agree that the decisions of 1945 and 1946 may have helped prevent a revival of the isolationism that kept the United States out of the League of Nations. In any event, U.N. diplomats say, the presence of the United Nations has made the American people more world-minded.

There have been critics, but public opinion polls consistently have shown 80 per cent of the American people were behind the world organization. It also has had the backing of every U.S. president since Harry S. Truman and it continues to have the support of an overwhelming majority in Congress.

The same may be said of the attitude of the U.N. delegates and secretariat toward the host country. There have been rough times—such as the purge of U.S. staff members during the McCarthy era—but there has never been a serious threat to transfer the headquarters away from the United States or from New York. On the contrary, the trend has been toward the "Americanization" of the organization.

Delegates and staff members have become accustomed to speaking English, watching U.S. television, eating American foods, using U.S. electrical appliances and following American politics.

A former U.N. undersecretary, Hernane Tavares de Sa of Brazil, concluded in his book "The Play Within the Play" that the world's top diplomats would not come to the United Nations so eagerly for the annual General Assembly sessions "if they were not encountering the lights of Broadway and the towers of Manhattan."

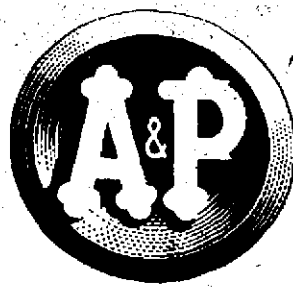

Not all are happy with this trend. These include African delegates who have faced problems of discrimination in housing and restaurants and, in some cases, have received scurrilous letters threatening their safety. They also include some Arab delegates who say it is difficult for the United Nations to deal with problems of the Middle East in the midst of a city with a large Jewish population. The importance attached to these complaints by the host country and host city is indicated by the existence of elaborate trouble-shooting machinery in both the U.S. Mission and in the city government to deal with such problems.

Although Africans now make up a large segment of the U.N. community, U.N. officials acknowledge that their problems have been sharply reduced by the efforts of Mayor John V. Lindsay's U.N. commissioner, Mrs. John L. Loeb.

The articulate and dynamic Mrs. Loeb, a niece of the late Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, seeks to head off trouble by arranging for a representative to call on each newly arriving family, to help them with housing, schools, city facilities, recreational services and even by warnings against fraud.

U.S. and New York officials continue to believe, however, that the advantages of having the United Nations here outweigh the inconveniences. A recent study by Prof. John G. Stoessinger for the Brookings Institution found that the city probably breaks even in terms of receipts and expenditures.

A SHORT STORY!

Not a story in the usual sense... nevertheless, it's one we think is of interest to you.

Our story is about A&P's short-cut, 7-inch, oven-ready Ribs of Beef, and the fact that we remove the excess Short Ribs and sell them separately at the lower Short Rib price. We never tuck them under and charge the Rib Roast price.

That's not all, though. For easier carving, we remove the back-strap, too.

As a matter of fact, on an average four-rib roast we trim up to 1 1/4 lbs. of excess fat and bone.

At Rib Roast prices, that adds up. Another thing that keeps you from being short-changed on value: A&P Rib Roasts are cut from the first four ribs only.

Our short story even has a happy ending... your family will enjoy every morsel.

That's guaranteed...or your money back.
